Lt.-Gen. Spaatz

Strategic Bombing Chief Has Colorful Background

This is the fifth in a series of dispatches on the leaders of the forthcoming second front invasion of Europe.—EDITOR.

By BOYD LEWIS

British United Press Correspondent

Lt.-Gen. Carl Andrew Spaatz of the United States Army Air Force has devoted most of his adult life to an effort to transform air power from a question mark to a sure thing.

He soared into newspaper headlines in 1929 when he took the army plane "Question Mark" aloft on a refueling endurance flight and held it there for six days and a new record. His assistant was a young army captain named Ira Eaker (Ma)-Gen. Ira Eaker, now Allied air chief in the Mediterranean. Both boys have done rather well in flying circles ever since.

LT.-GEN. CARL SPAATZ

EXCLUSIVE

He comes up from the Mediterranean to command the American phase of the strategic bombing of Germany under Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder.

If adequate air power can be applied against the heart of a nation, no other force is necessary, Spaatz asserted after Pantelleria hoisted the white flag to air power unassisted in June of last year. Continued on Page 5, Col. 4

Town of San Vittore Captured

Fifth Army Is Storming Outer Cassino Defences

By WES GALLAGHER

ALGIERS, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Victorious United States troops massed around captured San Vittore today forming a spearhead which stormed at the outer defences of Cassino, 70 straight-line miles from Rome.

The fall of the fiercely-defended little mountain village of San Vittore alongside the Via Cassilina was disclosed yesterday by Associated Press correspondent Don Whitehead. His dispatch from the front said San Vittore had been seized Thursday after a violent 40-hour battle from house to house. The village is six miles from Cassino.

The capture was confirmed today in the headquarters communiqué, which said the Anglo-American 5th Army advanced all along a 10-mile front in the jagged hills on both sides of the road.

Even before this official announcement of the taking of San Vittore, the Americans had smashed on in the direction of Cassino and were fighting in the streets of Giusto, a tiny village more than half a mile to the north.

BRITISH UNITS ADVANCE
British units of the 5th Army south of the Rome road matched this advance by driving through minefields and past pillboxes to reach Mount Porchia, a 900-foot height two miles southwest of San Vittore.

This peak controls the road all the way to Cassino, which itself now is within easy range of Allied big guns, but reports from the front said the Germans had built a gigantic defence ring around the town.

Edward George Greene of The Loyal Edmonton Regiment, who fought and was wounded in Sicily, has now recovered and is back in England after spending some months in hospital in North Africa, according to word received by his wife, Mrs. E. Greene of 9127 118 avenue. CSM. Greene enlisted in The Loyal Edmonton Regiment on Sept. 3, 1939, and went overseas in December of the same year.

Low Readings

U.S. Southwest Is Snowbound After Storms

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Most of Oklahoma and the Texas panhandle were snow-bound today after one of the worst winter storms in the southwest in years.

Temperatures fell as low as two degrees below zero at Guymon, Okla., and snow falls of 12 inches were reported from the nearby Texas panhandle as drifts piled up to six feet. Eight inches of snow, the heaviest in years, was reported at Oklahoma City and Tulsa, and at least one death was blamed on the weather.

Transportation was crippled and livestock raisers, short of feed, feared serious losses.

Heavy livestock deaths in the Texas panhandle were reported as that section dug out of the worst blizzard in 52 years. It was four above zero at Amarillo.

TRAIN STRANDED
North of Amarillo at Perryton, Tex., one farmer said he counted 159 dead cattle along a 10-mile stretch of highway. A special train sent from Amarillo to pick up motorists stranded at Jerico, Tex., 60 miles east.

Maximum snowfall in the Panhandle was approximately 12 inches. At Dalhart transmission lines were out of operation. Oklahoma highway patrolmen pulled 600 stranded motorists out of snowbanks during the storm.

Subzero weather was general in western Kansas with a minimum of eight below at Garden City. The frigid weather extended west into New Mexico and Colorado.

The weather bureau reported the worst of the cold wave was past in the southwest and forecast rising temperatures tonight. Normally balmy Arkansas, however, was warned of an impending cold wave which might take temperatures to as low as five degrees above zero.

Doctor Absolved
By Court Martial

FREDERICTON, N.B., Jan. 8.—(CP)—The charge against Capt. G. G. Alleyne was dismissed today on conclusion of his court martial on a charge of negligence in connection with the medical examination of Charles Fraser Smith, who died a few days after admission to the Canadian Army.

Capt. Alleyne, one of three medical officers involved in the court martial, was released from custody immediately after his acquittal. Cases of the other two officers will be tried next week.

Dr. Clyde W. Holland, Halifax physician who has specialized in treatment of diabetes, said today that from evidence given he would consider Smith had a severe case of this disease, but the witness believed that Capt. Alleyne, in his examination, had come to a "very reasonable conclusion."

ers were lost, but one bomber was reported to have made a forced landing in Switzerland and the pilot of a fighter was known to be safe.

Chief Justice

Chief Justice of Canada Thibault Rinfret of Montreal, whose appointment to succeed Sir Lyman Duff, who retired Friday, was announced last night by Prime Minister Mackenzie King. The new chief justice was senior member of the supreme court of Canada.

Montreal Jurist Succeeds Duff As Chief Justice

OTTAWA, Jan. 8.—(CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced late last night the appointment of Mr. Justice Thibault Rinfret as Chief Justice of Canada, succeeding Sir Lyman P. Duff who retired yesterday in his 80th year.

Making the announcement, Mr. King referred to Mr. Justice Rinfret, a native of Montreal, as the senior member of the supreme court of Canada, now that Sir Lyman has retired. The new chief justice was first appointed to the court in 1924.

HIGHLY ESTEEMED
"The newly-appointed chief justice, like his predecessor, has had wide judicial experience and is highly esteemed by members of the judiciary and the legal profession of Canada," said Mr. King.

Mr. King referred to Sir Lyman's nearly 40 years of service in the court.

Nazis Suspect
Western Front
Talk Is 'Blind'

MADRID, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Add to German invasion speculation: The Berlin correspondent of the newspaper Madrid said yesterday that many Germans believed all of the "second front" talk was a blind and that "2,000,000 or 3,000,000 American soldiers" would suddenly appear on the Russian front.

The correspondent wrote that this report had snow-balled since the sinking of the Nazi battleship Scharnhorst by the British home fleet Dec. 26 while making a futile attempt to attack an Allied Russian-bound convoy, which he reported was the largest convoy of troops and war material yet sent to Russia.

(There have been no Allied reports of any troop convoys to Russia.)

Montreal Police
Plan Minimum
Salary Demand

MONTREAL, Jan. 8.—(CP)—Montreal policemen, who went on strike for 14 hours last month to have their affiliation to the Canadian Congress of Labor recognized by the city authorities, will present a demand for a $2,400 minimum yearly salary to the board of arbitration set up to iron out the dispute, it was learned today.

Weather Will Continue Mild

A light snowfall early Saturday brought even milder temperature to the city. Shortly after midnight Friday snow began to fall, and continued until after 2:30 a.m. Saturday. Eight-tenths of an inch of snow fell. The maximum temperature for Friday was 30 degrees, and the minimum 13 degrees.

Saturday at 8:30 a.m. the official reading was 15 degrees, and the forecast for the day is "continuing mild."

LONDON, Jan. 8.—Russian troops have captured Kirovograd, big German base in the Dnieper Bend which they had encircled a day earlier, Premier Josef Stalin announced late today in an order of the day.

Kirovograd, 62 miles southwest of Kremenchug, 160 southeast of Kiev and 160 northeast of Odessa, fell after four days of fierce fighting, the official Moscow announcement said.

MOSCOW, Jan. 8.—Triumphant Russian mobile columns raced westward virtually unimpeded today over the old Polish plains and the approaches to Rumania through pulverized defences marking the greatest German disaster since Stalin-grad.

The government organ Izvestia said great processions of singing, high spirited Soviet troops were streaming forward through scenes of terrible carnage and destruction, the remains of the once vaunted Wehrmacht.

The Red army advance was like a big door swinging down against the German pocket in the Dnieper Bend, squeezing the demoralized enemy back against the Bug river fortifications.

While Gen. Nikolai F. Vatutin's advanced elements pushed more than 24 miles in old Poland, Gen. Ivan S. Konev's 2nd Ukrainian army in a concerted drive poured down into the Dnieper Bend through a 60-mile breach in the German defences and tightened the iron ring thrown around the keystone base of Kirovograd.

Izvestia reported that massive columns of Soviet motorized infantry, tanks, tractor-drawn artillery and self-propelled guns were speeding along the roads of the western Ukraine.

CLEAR OFF ROADS
Special detachments ranged on ahead, clearing the roads of smashed German tanks, guns and vehicles, and brushing aside thousands of corpses carpeting the wake of the Nazi fight.

In some sectors Russian units were engaged in comradely races between themselves for the honor of setting the pace westward. Izvestia said, the tank drivers shouting jubilant greetings as they passed slower-moving detachments.

The official newspaper said the Russians sensed the tremendous significance of Vatutin's breakthrough.

DAWSON, Creek, B.C., Jan. 8.—A new time record for bus travel on the Alaska Highway was established today when a U.S. Army-operated Greyhound bus from Whitehorse rolled into Dawson Creek exactly 36 hours' elapsed time after its departure from the Yukon centre.

The previous record for the 860-mile run was 38 hours. All-Canadian personnel comprised the driving teams of the record run. The first team, driving from Whitehorse to Watson Lake, was made up of two Calgary men, James Logan and Hank Huff. The second team, handling the trip from Watson to Fort Nelson, was composed of Eddie Ellard, Regina, and George LaLiberte, Saskatoon, while the final stretch into Dawson Creek was driven by the Maxwell brothers, Fraser and Roy, of Saskatoon.

Strong Anti-Nazi
Propaganda Drive
Starts in Reich

BARCELONA, Jan. 8.—(CP)—The Russian drive into Poland touched off a new campaign of anti-Nazi propaganda within Germany itself, according to information from inside Germany.

A flood of pamphlets was reported to have appeared on Berlin sidewalks, giving news of the front and showing Hitler and Napoleon looking at two maps.

One map was described as showing the former German positions at Stalingrad, and the other the Russian positions on the Polish border, with Napoleon saying, "I saw it coming."

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, Jan. 8.—Ranging from the Solomon Islands to New Ireland, New Britain and New Guinea, Allied airmen demonstrated their aerial superiority in the southwest Pacific by heavily damaging Japanese shipping, installations and airfields, it was announced today.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communiqué, reporting that fighting had died down on the southeastern front of the Allied beachhead at Cape Gloucester, said the raids included an attack Wednesday night on Kavieng by medium units which pounded the airfield and other installations.

Kavieng, located at the northern tip of New Ireland, only 150 miles northwest of Rabaul, New Britain, is a strategic enemy harbor and supply base.

The communiqué said Australian planes driving north along the Huon peninsula coast of New Guinea, occupied Koroia village, 11 miles below the Japanese barge centre of Sio.

Germans to Work
In Lumber Camps

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., Jan. 8.—(CP)—A party of about 50 German prisoners of war from the internment camp near here are en route to lumbering camps of northern Alberta. The men left Thursday for White Court, about 115 miles northwest of Edmonton.

Movement of the men is under close guard and on arrival they will be housed in specially-constructed camps. They will be paid a nominal wage for working. It is learned that each of the men in the party volunteered for the work.

A month ago two carloads of German prisoners of war from the internment camp near here went to work in lumbering camps at Chisholm, 110 miles northwest of Edmonton.

The first enemy submarine was encountered at night northwest of the islands and when illuminated by star-shells from H.M.S. Kite, the U-boat submerged and the Kite promptly attacked with depth charges.

Meanwhile other ships of the surface fleet joined the Kite and the Starling made contact with the submarine which was forced to dive deep.

Since the night was very dark, further attacks were postponed until daylight and for four hours the Starling, Kite and H.M.S. Woodcock kept contact with the Nazi craft, which sought to make its escape by proceeding very slowly to the southwest.

RESUME ATTACK
At the first light of dawn, the Woodcock resumed the attack and a few moments after the sloop dropped its first pattern of depth charges, noises from deep under the water indicated that the submarine was breaking up.

Two explosions followed and soon large quantities of wreckage floated to the surface, showing beyond doubt that the U-boat had been destroyed.

A few hours later, another submarine was sighted by H.M.S. Wildgoose, and the Starling and Wildgoose bore in, splashing depth charges as the enemy craft dived.

Again break-up noises were heard, followed by explosions and soon a pool of oil welled to the surface together with wreckage and the sea became covered with debris. The oil pool stretched for a mile in all directions.

Common Wealth

LONDON, Jan. 8.—(CP)—The Common Wealth party won its third seat in the House of Commons yesterday's by-election in Skipton, final figures showed today.

Lieut. Hugh Lawson won the seat with 12,222 votes to 12,001 for H. Riddiough, Conservative.

The third candidate, J. Toole, Independent, polled 3,029 votes. The by-election was made necessary by the death of G. W. Richards, Conservative.

Woman Admits Fatal Shooting After 17 Years

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—(AP)—A woman walked into the detective bureau yesterday and announced she was surrendering for the fatal shooting of a man in a restaurant here 17 years ago.

"It has been preying on my mind," she said.

Chief of Detectives John L. Sullivan said the woman identified herself as Mrs. Maxine Allen, 45, and told him she killed Harry Woods in self defence Oct. 3, 1927, when he attempted to attack her with a meat cleaver.

The woman said she left her husband before the shooting and had been "wandering around the country" since then.

Sullivan said there was a police record of Woods' slaying but that it would be difficult to obtain evidence after so many years.

The woman was held without charge.

They included Lieutenants Larry Gale, Edmonton; J. T. Sharp, Duncan, B.C.; H. D. Bulmer, Calgary, and S. T. FitzPatrick, Victoria.

Reich Bombed Mosquito Raid Follows Heavy Daylight Blow

LONDON, Jan. 8.—British Mosquito bombers kept Axis defences on edge with nuisance raids on western Germany last night following yesterday's American assault on the southwestern Reich and a 750-plane bombardment of the French invasion coast.

The roar of British heavy bombers participating in extensive air exercises over the home countries during the night led many to believe that the R.A.F.'s R.C.A.F. four-engined warplanes were engaged in large-scale raids on the continent, but none apparently crossed the English channel or North Sea.

Strong formations of American Flying Fortresses and Liberators bombed unspecified objectives in southwestern Germany through heavy clouds with the aid of new, secret aiming devices in daylight yesterday.

HIT TWIN CITIES
Swedish dispatches said the Americans made a heavy half-hour raid on the twin German chemical and arms centres of Ludwigshafen and Mannheim in the Rhineland, setting heavy fires that transformed Ludwigshafen especially into a "sea of flames."

Enemy opposition generally was weak, the 8th Air Force announced, but 33 intercepting enemy planes were shot down by the bombers and nine by their fighter escort, one of the largest yet sent out.

Twelve bombers and seven fighters were lost, but one bomber was reported to have made a forced landing in Switzerland and the pilot of a fighter was known to be safe.

Smuts Says 1944 Year of Destiny

PRETORIA, South Africa, Jan. 8.—(CP)—Prime Minister Smuts predicted yesterday that this year "is going to be a year of destiny."

Addressing the Transvaal head committee of the United Party, Smuts said:

"Unless something unforeseen happens and unless we make some incalculable blunder, this year is going to be a year of destiny and of decisions which will affect the fate not only of South Africa but of the whole world for generations to come."

"Our program is in order and our plans are mapped out politically and militarily."

"I have come back from Britain with the impression that our 'set-up' for the last phase of the war is a good one."

Factory Workers Court Martialled In Milan Strikes

BERNE, Jan. 8.—(AP)—A number of factory workers and managers in German-held Milan have been ordered court martialled following a series of Italian strikes and labor demonstrations, the newspaper Basler Nachrichten said yesterday in a dispatch from Chasso.

The article quoted the Milan press, as saying unofficially that several workers would be sentenced to death.

The dispatch said the situation in Milan was tense despite severe precautionary measures taken by the Germans, the trouble starting when several thousand striking workers demanded better food, higher wages and better transportation facilities.

5th Army Units Storming Outer Lines at Cassino

Important junction, fortifying every house in every village and farm community along the way.

On the northern end of the 5th Army's 10-mile offensive front Allied forces pushed on from captured 3,500-foot Mount Maio and climbed 500 feet higher through deep snow and captured a nearby 4,000-foot peak south of Vitulose. This drive formed the northern arm of a pincer aimed at Cassino.

North of Vitulose the Germans recaptured Mount Raimo, but this bitter sea-saw mountain warfare in central Italy had no immediate relation to the 5th Army's offensive in the Cassino area, now in the fourth day.

PATROL CLASHES
Deep snow on the 8th Army front blocked all large-scale movements, the communique said, although there were several sharp patrol clashes. In one such clash on the Adriatic coast 22 Germans were killed.

(The Cairo radio said Canadian troops in this area had thrust forward to occupy several high features overlooking Tora Tora and now look down on the main road to Pescara. The broadcast said Indian troops advanced four miles beyond San Tomasso.)

Clear, cold weather released Allied planes for new blows against the enemy in Yugoslavia and northern Italy.

One formation of heavy American bombers hammered a German aircraft factory at Maribor, a few miles south of the Austrian border in Yugoslavia, and another group of the American heavyweights attacked Plume, on Italy's Istrian peninsula.

The planes striking at Maribor had to fight their way through 50 Nazi interceptors and shot down three. Returning crews said they heavily blasted the factory, which makes airplane engines.

Soviets Break Into Bastion Of Kirovograd

through and knew they were taking part in one of the most significant strategic battles of history.

Motorized units were hogging the roads, disputing the honor of front rank position with tankmen, while a "Spirit of irresistible victory predominates in the forces seeking to contact and engage the retreating enemy," according to Izvestia.

BLOCKED WITH WRECKAGE
The columns pouring westward in the Western Ukraine found the roads literally blocked by the wreckage of German units smashed by Vatutin's vanguard, field dispatches said.

Ditches and fields on either side of the roads were described as graveyards of armored and motorized divisions. The snow-covered fields were dotted with thousands of German corpses.

One dispatch said Soviet units had begun an advance westward from Novograd Volynski, in a sector where they had paused at the stout Sluz River defenses, to Rowne province of old Poland.

While the First Ukrainian Army slashed 24 miles into pre-war Poland and pushed a three-pronged advance toward Bessarabia from the north, the Second Ukrainian Army to the east ripped a 60-mile gap in the enemy defenses, encircled Kirovograd and poured out onto the open, flat southern Ukrainian steppes.

SMASH LAST BARRIER
The breakthrough at Kirovograd, which sent five German divisions into disorganized retreat, smashed the last natural barrier from this direction before the Bug and Dniester Rivers, neither of which was expected to prove a serious obstacle to a winter drive into Bessarabia by troops who already had hurdled the far more formidable Don and Dnieper Rivers.

The Soviet high command announced in its midnight communique that the retreating Germans, probably totalling 50,000, were abandoning their equipment and supplies in precipitate retreat. The new Soviet offensive was reported to have carried 25 miles through the enemy's defenses and engulfed more than 120 localities in the first three days.

They were married aboard the liner Santa Paula Sept. 19, 1936, and cruised to New York for their honeymoon. They have two children.

Nazis Jittery

British Leaflets Scattered On Reich Warn of Zero Hour

By J. EDWARD MURRAY

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin
Copyright, 1944, by British United Press

LONDON, Jan. 8.—Increasing signs of Nazi invasion jitters were reported today as Swedish reports told of British bombers scattering leaflets over Germany warning that mobilization has been completed for the final defeat of the Reich and hinting that the zero hour for the opening of a second front was not far off.

The existence of the warning leaflets was disclosed, a London Daily Mail dispatch from Stockholm said, when some of those dropped during the heavy British Canadian raid on the Nazi Baltic port of Stettin Wednesday night accidentally landed in Sweden.

"World mobilization against Germany is now finished," the leaflets were quoted as saying. "Germany for a second time faces ruin. Shall the Germans escape the last minute before midnight? Time is short. The hands of the clock move on ceaselessly. The time is exactly quarter to twelve."

GOEBBELS' PEP RALLY

German nervousness was reflected in propaganda broadcasts boasting over the supposedly impregnable "Atlantic wall" and disclosing that Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels had found it necessary to recall a number of high-ranking officers from the embattled eastern front for a pep rally.

Goebbels explained to the recalled commanders, as well as to officers of the Berlin garrison, "the connection between military and political war leadership," the official DNB agency said in a dispatch that implied a growing breach in relations between the military and Nazi party leadership.

"He concluded by saying that inexhaustible energies won from the welding of political intelligence and the military might give us the guarantee that we will win this war," DNB said.

TELL OF DEFENCES

Radio Berlin in what appeared to be an attempt to persuade the Allied command of the folly of attempting to invade western Europe, asserting that 7,000 heavy guns had been mounted along the Atlantic coast from Narvik to the Pyrenees. In addition, the broadcast said, more than 3,000 heavy anti-tank guns have been set up from Denmark to southern France.

Other formidable defenses along the "Atlantic wall" were said to include giant flame throwers, pillboxes and "millions of mines."

Police Capture Two Abductors

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Two Norfolk, Va., men who police said admitted they were the abductors of a Washington cab driver and his passenger and of another cab driver in Brooklyn, were seized today at an Eighth Avenue movie theatre.

The hunt for the men was spurred by the report of the second abduction. A Brooklyn cab driver told police that two riding-togged bandits forced him into the sedan last night after relieving him of his ready cash.

Thursday night two men singing boogie-woogie songs and threatening death to their two Washington prisoners, carried Miss Mercedes Platt, 25, and Herman Corman, 22, taxi-driver, on a 250-mile ride from the Washington airport to South Brooklyn, where they said they were going to "see a sick friend." There they released their captives, terror-stricken but unharmed after the 12-hour escapade.

Miss Platt, a receptionist in the United States embassy in Havana, said she was enroute from Toronto after a 10-day leave.

Alleged Deserter Will Face Charge

A regular walking scrapheap of salvage metal is U.S. Coast Guardsman Charles Giammona, 22, of Chicago. About 300 pieces already have been removed.

Banking Control First Objective Of C.C.F. Party

WINNIPEG, Jan. 8.—(CP)—

David Lewis of Ottawa, national secretary of the C.C.F., said here yesterday that "if a C.C.F. administration was in power after the war one of its first steps would be to control banking and financial policy in order to be able to direct investment in socially useful channels and thus to avoid unemployment in Canada."

The C.C.F. also "would undertake to build and provide homes and schools under public auspices," he said in addressing students at the University of Manitoba.

Recalling an address in Calgary last November by Harold Winch, C.C.F. leader in British Columbia, during which Mr. Winch spoke of instituting socialism and dealing with those who refused to obey the law, Mr. Lewis said:

USE OF POLICE

"Surely it is not wrong to use the police against the Corporation of International Nickel, for example, should it break the law, any more than it is to use the police against the workers of International Nickel as was done some years ago when they first tried to organize."

People became indignant because it is unheard of that 'big shots' should be treated as lawbreakers."

Speaking of agriculture, Mr. Lewis said the C.C.F. based its farm policy on the recognition of the attachment which a farmer has to the land which he tills and the fact that the farm is not only the tools of production but also his home.

"For this reason, the C.C.F. believes in the family farm and the private ownership of the family farm, but it also looks forward to co-operative or collective production of farm machinery, co-operative working of the farms, co-operative or collective handling of farm produce and also processing and marketing."

"In this way, the social advantages of the privately-owned family farm will be retained and the collective advantages of agriculture planning and co-operation will be added to this foundation."

Nazi Concern Over Soviet War Shown

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

LONDON, Jan. 8.—Martin Hallensleben, Nazi radio commentator, said today that uninterrupted Russian attacks of extreme strength "show that the Soviets are determined to break up the German front, to encircle and annihilate the German armies, and to force a decision."

"Their aim is the destruction of the German front in the east," Hallensleben said in a broadcast reflecting grave concern over the turn the fighting has taken.

He said the tactical moves of the German armies "are the logical results of a strategy which can be understood only by those who know all the details. But by those who know, these moves are considered proof that the German command is determined to maintain its entire freedom of action."

Dynamite Sticks Thrown at Inn Housing Mosley

LONDON, Jan. 8.—(CP)—The tabloid Daily Mirror reported yesterday that two sticks of dynamite had been thrown and exploded at the entrance to the inn at Shipton-Under-Wychwood, Oxfordshire, where Sir Oswald Mosley, British Fascist leader recently released from internment, and Lady Mosley are staying.

The newspaper said no one was hurt and no damage was done in the blast which was a method chosen by some villagers to show they resent the presence of the Mosleys.

Berlin Said "Hell" Outside Shelters

MADRID, Jan. 8.—(AP)—German newspapers this week published an interview with a non-commissioned officer, Karl Hampe, who said he found his native Berlin just as much in the front line as the Russia front itself because of air attacks. He was quoted as saying "during the bombardment I might as well have been back in the trenches. Outside an air raid shelter it was hell."

500 Violent Deaths Daily in France

BERNE, Jan. 8.—(AP)—French police estimate that 500 persons, Frenchmen and Germans, meet violent death every day throughout France, a Paris dispatch to the Tribune de Geneve said yesterday.

These include the victims of railroad sabotage, bush fighting, political assassinations, Nazi reprisals and executions.

From Mont Bellard in the department of Doubs the newspaper reported that Partisans fought a German patrol and killed 27 in releasing six Frenchmen imprisoned because they had "printed a secret newspaper. Two women members of the guerilla band were killed."

Montreal Strikers Request Meeting With Government

MONTREAL, Jan. 8.—(CP)—Leaders of 2,000 striking white-collar municipal workers asked Premier Godbout last night for a meeting with the provincial government, amid growing indications that a solution was near to end the 18-day walkout.

C. O. Bruteau, acting president of the Montreal Syndicate of Municipal Workers, sent the request to the premier by telegram, asking that the syndicate and the committee of nine who have directed the strike meet with the provincial cabinet and the Quebec Municipal Commission "within the shortest possible time."

Mobile Spitfire Squadron Moves With Army in Italy

By ALLAN NICKLESON

LONDON, Jan. 8.—(CP)—A mobile force that leaps from one airfield to another behind an advancing army, the City of Windsor squadron sends its Spitfires roaring into the air daily from a muddy Italian plain to the other side of the front line in a death challenge to the faded power of the German air force in the Mediterranean.

"Glamazon" Weds

Actress Bunny Waters, six-foot-one-inch newcomer to the films, one of the new style skyscraper beauties known as "glamazon," has been married to band leader Johnny Green. She's 24, he's 35.

The powerful whine of its fighters has been all but continuous as the squadron has kept pace with the great advance of the eighth army that swept the enemy from Africa, Sicily and southern Italy.

I spent a day and a night with this "hot" outfit in its tented living quarters and bog-like airfield and portable wire runways.

MORNING ABLUTIONS

The morning ablutions are performed outside the living quarters in the chill winter air. There's plenty of groaning when it comes time to take a bath, because the cleansing act takes place in a small canvas "tub."

Inside the tents, each shared by three or four, the fellows sleep in folding cots.

Led by Sqdn. Ldr. Bert Houle, D.F.C., Massey, Ont., some of the pilots had finished a dawn patrol when we arose in the morning and walked through mud to the main mess tent.

There was plenty of letter-writing that day, by such fellows as P.O. Malcolm Baskan, 11003 108 St., Edmonton.

The fellows look forward to leave—naturally. It enables them to get away from the rigors of hard living and they usually head for Naples.

TO VISIT WINDSOR

The boys are unanimous that one of the first places they'll make for on their return to Canada will be Windsor, Ont., the city that adopted them.

Windsor citizens took the squadron to heart. Cigarettes, packages and letters come from people they never have seen. It gives them a warm feeling inside.

Wife of Former President Dies

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Mrs. Herbert Hoover, 68, wife of former President Hoover, died suddenly in their apartment here last night.

Hoover was bidding her goodbye, preparatory to leaving for a dinner, when she was stricken with a heart attack and died a few minutes later.

Apparently in her usual health, Mrs. Hoover had returned to the apartment only a short time before from a concert.

The Hoovers' two sons, Allan Hoover of California, a rancher, and Herbert Hoover, Jr., a radio engineer, were notified of their mother's death immediately.

Mrs. Hoover was the daughter of Charles D. Henry, a banker of Waterloo, Ia.

Mrs. Hoover recently visited California and had returned to New York shortly before the holidays.

Funeral arrangements will be announced Saturday, a source close to the family said.

William Vanderbilt Is Fatally Stricken

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP)—William Kissam Vanderbilt, 65, great grandson of the founder of the family fortune, died early today. Vanderbilt, former president of the New York Central railroad which his great grandfather founded, died of a heart ailment from which he had been suffering since before Christmas. Death came at 12:32 a.m. At his death he was a director and member of the executive committee of the railroad.

Protests Transfer Of Esquimalt Band

VICTORIA, Jan. 8.—(CP)—R. W. Mayhew, Liberal member of parliament for Victoria, yesterday wired Navy Minister Macdonald protesting the proposed transfer to eastern Canada of the Royal Canadian Navy band at nearby Esquimalt, saying that he did not believe such action was justified.

Figures in Army Command Changes

These two senior officers of the Canadian Army are leading figures in changes in command of Canada's overseas army announced by Ottawa along with news of the retirement from active command of Gen. McNaughton. At left is Lieut.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, former chief of the general staff who commands a Canadian Corps fighting in the Mediterranean theatre. At right is Lieut.-Gen. Kenneth Stuart, present Chief of the General Staff who is now appointed Chief of Staff, Canadian Military Headquarters, London, and Acting Commander of the First Canadian Army. They are pictured together watching Canadian troops' manoeuvres in Britain.

In Bitter Battle

Virtually All Nazis Killed, Captured at San Vittore

By DON WHITEHEAD

SAN VITTORE, Italy, Jan. 8.—(AP)—United States troops fighting from house to house in a bitter battle which raged for nearly 40 hours, captured the village of San Vittore at 3:37 p.m. Thursday, killing or capturing virtually all the German defenders.

Control of San Vittore put the Allied 5th Army a step nearer Cassino and wiped out German resistance in one of the toughest defensive points in the enemy's winter line.

More than 100 prisoners were taken in the town alone during the battle through the gray stone houses and at least an equal number were killed in the savage fighting that swirled through the streets, into houses and upon rooftops.

FOUGHT WELL—NOT WISELY

But though the Germans fought well they did not fight wisely because the Doughboys trapped them and only a scattered few Germans slipped through the ring of steel which closed around the shell-smashed town.

While the battle raged around the town terrified, miserable, hungry civilians crouched in dark cellars and caves where they lived for days.

The Germans had forced them from their homes to convert each house into a small fortress. Some 200 women and children crept into the dark, smelly sanctuaries to wait for the tide of battle to roll over.

I went into San Vittore yesterday morning with a small group of correspondents and camera men. We walked two miles through the shrapnel-torn olive groves and slipped along walls to escape detection by the enemy on the hill over the town.

CLEAN OUT NAZIS

On the slope of a hill outside the town American soldiers were cleaning out the last German defenders in machine-gun nests and the air vibrated with the crack of small arms and the whack of enemy mortar shells. Litter bearers trudged down the cobble lane carrying out the wounded.

Over everything was the sour, pungent odor of death. Alongside the trail lay four dead mules ripped to pieces by a shell.

Navy Patrol Ship Sunk in Collision

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 8.—(AP)—The United States Navy patrol ship St. Augustine, once a $125,000 pleasure yacht used by heiress Barbara Hutton, sank in the Atlantic ocean 60 miles southeast of Cape May, N.J., Thursday night after a collision with a merchant ship, naval authorities announced here yesterday.

Three bodies and five survivors were landed yesterday at Cape May naval base hospital, navy officers said at Cape May.

At Philadelphia, officers said "an unspecified number of bodies" had been brought ashore and that navy and coast guard vessels were put out to pick up survivors.

Extent of damage to the merchant ship, not identified, was "undetermined," the navy said.

Bakery Director Quits Prices Board

OTTAWA, Jan. 8.—(CP)—The Prices Board announced last night the retirement of G. Cecil Morrison of Ottawa as director of the board's bread and bakery products administration. Mr. Morrison, who is returning to his duties as president of Morrison Lamothe Bakery Ltd., here, will be succeeded by Col. C. M. Rutlan of Toronto, who has returned from overseas and retired from military service under age limit regulations.

Coldwell Says C.C.F. Will Not Bring Revolt

KAMLOOPS, B.C., Jan. 8.—(CP)—M. J. Coldwell, National C.C.F. leader, told a public meeting here last night that if a federal C.C.F. government is elected, Canada will not wake up the next morning to find a revolution on its hands.

Socialization would proceed by evolution with finance coming under government control first, followed by nationalization of industries upon which the life of the nation depends, he added.

"We believe the God-given natural resources of the country and the great machinery of production ought to be owned, controlled and operated, not for the benefit of a few corporations or individuals, but for the well-being of all mankind," Mr. Coldwell said.

MAINSRING OF PROGRESS

This philosophy is the mainspring of progress throughout the world, he argued, and vested interests in Canada are becoming thoroughly terrified and are going to "indescrutable lengths" to block it.

The C.C.F. believes in private ownership of those things upon which the well-being of the individual depends, he said, adding these were such things as his tools and his home.

Under any form of socialized society there is room for many enterprises either co-operatively or privately owned, he went on. Some things should be provincially owned, electrical services for instance, Mr. Coldwell said, while others such as water supplies should be operated by municipalities.

EQUAL SACRIFICE

Mr. Coldwell contended that if Mr. Coldwell compelling the young men to lay down their lives in the war, then the country should require industry and wealth to make the same sacrifice.

He said that men in the armed services by their opinions reflected in ballots know the C.C.F. stands for the only kind of policy which will give them the kind of Canada they want to come back to.

He added that in all his reading of courageous living in the history of the world none equals the courage of Canada's young men in the air force yet these are the same lads upon whom the government had used tear gas bombs during the depression.

Troops Keep Warm By 'Ingenious Ways'

WITH THE 8TH ARMY IN ITALY, Jan. 8.—(CP)—Troops of the British 8th Army, which includes the Canadian 1st Division, have devised ingenious ways of keeping warm in the biting weather.

Men in front-line slit trenches wear gas capes over their greatcoats and a Canadian officer remarked that the "gas cape is one of the most useful inventions of the war." He said he found it a real asset with its water-resisting and wind-breaking qualities.

Every house and wall is being used as a windbreak. Gas tanks, dragged from wrecked German vehicles, are among the most popular form of stove. One end of the tank is knocked open and the outlet pipe fixed. Encased in brick, the tank then is ready for use.

Straw is not being used much. In some units it is completely taboo on account of its "visitors." The men would rather shiver than scratch.

Chicago May Get G.O.P. Convention

By D. HAROLD OLIVER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Wendell L. Wilkie's expressed willingness to hold the 1944 Republican nomination convention in Chicago cleared the way last night for that city's easy selection.

The only other possible stumbling block to harmony at next week's convention-planning meeting of the party's national committee in Chicago, as seen here by some party chieftains, is the method of setting up an arrangement committee.

Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio has said that certain unidentified individuals may try to force election of this group through the national committee rather than the national chairman, who usually makes the choices.

Wilkie, 1940 Republican presidential choice at Philadelphia, made his no-objection-to-Chicago statement in an interview yesterday at New York. Heretofore his supporters have opposed Chicago on the ground that it was a pre-war isolationist centre.

The GOP national committee will meet Monday and Tuesday in Chicago to choose a convention site. More than 200 Republican leaders have been asked to attend.

Operator Urges Use of Prisoners For Coal Mining

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 8.—(AP)—The employment of prisoners of war to ease the labor shortage in Pennsylvania's anthracite coal mines has been suggested by Maj. W. W. Inglis, president of the Glen Alden Coal Company. "I'd hire them at regular wage rates so long as we have a crisis in production," he said.

Queen's Fund

MONTREAL, Jan. 8.—(CP)—The national total of the Queen's Canadian Fund was announced last night as $1,444,313.20.

A Letter from Home!

Shown above are winners in the obstacle race held at a sports meeting in Italy by Canadians resting after a period of operations. Left to right are L.-Cpl. H. L. Hall, Vermilion; Pte. J. Purves, Grande Prairie, and Pte. C. A. Spracklin and Pte. G. A. Price, both of Edmonton.

Regulations forbid individuals sending newspapers overseas. The Edmonton Bulletin prints the news of the week in letter form. Clip it out and send it to your loved ones and friends.

Dear

Since we last wrote, our Edmonton welcomed in the New Year. It wasn't the kind of New Year we used to know here—rather quiet this time. But at that, it was the best we celebrated since 1939. While we couldn't have you with us, we had the prospects of a victorious 1944, and that meant a mighty lot to us at home.

Through the whistles, shouts and din that always greets the coming year, we thought of you—what were you doing, where you were, and whether or not you were thinking of us as we welcomed in 1944.

January 3

Sixteen Edmontonians were among 331 Canadians—members of the Canadian Army, Royal Canadian Air Force and Royal Canadian Navy—awarded honors and decorations in the King's New Year's honor list. Truck convoys are now rolling over the tote road of more than 600 miles connecting Norman wells in the Northwest Territories with Whitehorse in the Yukon.

Debts totalling $831,000 owed by 10,000 Alberta farmers to the provincial government since between 1931 and 1935, have been cancelled, it was announced Monday by Premier Ernest Manning. With city tax collections sweeping to 123 per cent. of the levy, and land sales exceeding the previous record by more than $100,000, Edmonton enjoyed one of its most successful years in history according to John Hodgson, city commissioner. E.A.C. Juniors won a 5-3 victory over the Canadian Athletic Club in the opening game of the City Junior Hockey League New Year's afternoon.

Investiture of two prominent Edmonton citizens into the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire, and the presentation of army decorations to three officers and two non-commissioned officers of the Canadian Army, were highlights of the 1944 New Year's Day levee held at the Legislative buildings Saturday by His Honor Lt.-Gov. J. C. Bowen. The Order of the British Empire was bestowed on Mrs. Mary H. Conquest, 10822 128 street, and Edmund Trowbridge, deputy provincial secretary. Efficiency Decorations were awarded to Lt.-Col. R. Walter Hale, M.C., Maj. T. G. Brown, and Maj. C. E. Anderson. The Efficiency Medal was awarded to RQMS. E. E. White and QS. James Tennent.

Squadron Leader Isaac M. Maclean, commanding officer of Fort St. John unit of the Northwest Staging Route, R.C.A.F., died in the University hospital at 11:45 a.m. Sunday from injuries received in a plane crash northwest of Fort St. John last Tuesday.

Still enjoying the "best of health" Mrs. M. Mail of Edmonton celebrated her 92nd birthday Monday. Undaunted by the sudden cold wave, thousands flocked to Edmonton churches Sunday morning to participate in the first Sunday services of the New Year. Six persons were injured, two of whom went to hospital, in traffic accidents over the New Year week-end.

January 4

First major real estate transaction of 1944 was reported Tuesday by the sale by the Hudson's Bay Company land department of the 52.7 feet on Jasper avenue, immediately east of the Credit Foncier building, to William Nesbitt, Kerrsboro, Sask. Purchase price is believed to be about $45,000. An announcement as to the future use of Government House will be made within the next few days by Premier Ernest Manning. John Crawford, Edmonton, district inspector of mines here, has been appointed chief inspector of mines for the province, Hon. N. E. Tanner, minister of lands and mines, announced Tuesday.

Old Man Winter has arrived in Edmonton with a vengeance. For the first time this season sub-zero temperatures are on the books. Maximum for Monday was 3 below, and the overnight low was 18 degrees below. Post office officials reported Tuesday that the highest volume of mail was handled during December, 1943, as compared to any other previous year.

Protest meetings against recently enacted War-time Wage Control orders will be organized by affiliates of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada throughout the Dominion, at which demands will be made for the restoration of the powers of parliament and the discontinuance of government by order-in-council.

Maj. A. K. Robertson, of Vancouver, and now posted here as special assistant to Maj.-Gen. W. W. Foster, C.M.G., D.S.O., E.D., commissioner for defence projects in the northwest, has been promoted to the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel, N.D.H.Q. announced today. Approximately 425 United States male citizens between the ages of 18 and 44 residing in Alberta and the northwest, have registered here under U.S. government selective service regulations.

Births in Edmonton and district during 1943 totalled 4,084 compared with 3,600 in the previous year. Business done by 219 co-operatives in Alberta in 1943 is expected to top the $80,000,000 mark, it was announced in Edmonton Tuesday by F. J. Fitzpatrick, supervisor of co-operative activities and credit unions for the province.

Recently appointed commander of the Allied invasion armies that will open the long-awaited second front, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower was a classmate of Brig.-Gen. L. D. Worsham, division engineer of the Northwest Division with headquarters in the former Jesuit College in Edmonton.

January 5

Three persons were injured Tuesday night when a speeding auto struck a street car at 115 avenue and 95 street. In hospital are Cecil L. Talbot, 9838 112 street, driver of the car; Louis de la Cruse, 10223 122 street, and Charley Bennie, 3324 111 avenue, all of whom suffered head injuries. Order of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board halting evictions of tenants is hailed with satisfaction but with the feeling that "it does not go far enough" by officials of the Edmonton branch of the Canadian Legion.

The new 1944 liquor permits have been selling like hot cakes in Edmonton since Monday, officials reported Wednesday. Lowest reading of frost this season was registered Wednesday morning when the thermometer hit 21 degrees below zero. Increased employment in Edmonton is reflected in payments made by citizens on arrears of land taxes since the outbreak of war.

Maple Leafs, Edmonton Athletic Club No. 1, and Mapleos got away to a flying start in the City Midget League Tuesday night when they won their opening games of the season.

Wholehearted endorsement of a brief recently submitted by The Royal Edmonton Regiment overseas to Hon. J. L. Ralston, minister of national defence, has been given by members of the Edmonton Canadian Corps Association. Officers, for the extension of the industrial mobilization survey to Edmonton, will be established here early this year. Edmonton branch of the Canadian Legion has requested a piece of property near the C.P.R. station on which to build a hut to be used as a reception centre for welcoming servicemen home.

The War Services Council at a recent meeting voted to add a service women's section to its board of directors. American citizens who are working as civilians on defence projects in Alberta have been granted exemption from municipal poll tax levies.

Provincial government departments are now busy preparing estimates for submission to Hon. Solon E. Low, provincial treasurer, for inclusion in the 1944-45 budget to be brought down at the next session on Feb. 10. William A. Smith, for 32 years a member of the city police department, has been appointed detective-sergeant in charge of the morally section.

Exceeding the estimated 30,000,000 passengers by 720,218, patronage on Edmonton's street railway system in 1943 more than doubled that of 1939, and was approximately 50 per cent. ahead of the 1942 total. Revenue collected by the telephone department during 1943 was $111,419.96 in excess of that of 1942.

Only 1,500 applications for motor license refunds have been received by the provincial secretary's department to date. The order "freezing" all workers employed in industries in the "A" and "B" categories which was put into effect several months ago has been rescinded insofar as it concerns those workers employed in the logging industry. The November, 1943, census in Alberta which stood at 200 last year, is being steadily reduced, and prospects are bright for the re-opening of many schools now closed.

Long-time resident of this city, Joseph Hickman Jackson, one of the original partners of Jackson Brothers, jewellers who carried on a business here for many years, died Wednesday night at his home at 10978 123 street.

It is essential that a national coal policy be formulated for Canada, if coal is to be expected to play a part in industries of the post-war period, Hon. N. E. Tanner, minister of lands and mines told members of the Alberta and Northwest Chamber of Mines and Resources organization's annual meeting Thursday.

No. 3 "M" Depot and H.M.C.S. Nonsuch played a 3-3 tie on the latter's home ice in the opening game of the Inter-Service Hockey League Thursday night.

When Are Taxes Paid?

Dominion income taxation came into existence with the passing of the Income Tax Act in 1917. It is under this Act, as subsequently amended, that every person having an income more than the amount of the statutory exemption is required to make a return each year showing his income and to remit the taxes he thinks are due to the federal treasury.

But the Government is not bound to accept the return as being accurate and the amount remitted as being the sum actually due. The Minister of National Revenue can order that any taxpayer's income be assessed, his figures gone over, and any under-payment made good. This power is conferred by Section 55 of the amended Act, which reads as follows:

"Notwithstanding any prior assessment, or if no assessment has been made, the taxpayer shall continue to be liable for any tax and to be assessed therefor and the Minister may at any time assess, re-assess or make additional assessments upon any person for tax, interest and penalties."

There is no time limit on this clause. It reaches back 26 years to the institution of income taxation. It applies to every person who has ever paid income taxes—and to any person whom it is suspected should have paid but did not. No taxpayer knows that his account with the Government is closed in respect to income taxes due or supposedly due any time within the last 26 years.

Should an account be put under review and it is found that, whether by error or intent, the taxpayer has paid less than he should have paid, he is required to not only pay the arrears but to pay interest on the amount of his shortage; and is also subject to the penalties provided, even if the default was due to a mistake on the part of the tax officials and not that of the taxpayer.

But, on the other side of the case, should a taxpayer find that he has over-paid, he has only one year in which to apply for a refund. And it does not necessarily follow that he will get the money back; the Act merely says the Minister "may" refund the over-payment. Nor will the taxpayer get any interest on the money thus unintentionally loaned to the Government. The principal is all he can get, he may or may not get that, and he certainly will not get it unless he discovers the mistake and sends in his application within twelve months of making out his return.

As the matter stands, even though a taxpayer has filed all his returns regularly, has paid his taxes when due, has received his tax bills from the department and receipts for the amounts paid, the Government can still go back over the 26 year record, say that an official made a mistake somewhere, and collect any shortages claimed, along with interest and penalties.

But while the Government has 26 years in which to find mistakes made by the collectors, the taxpayer has only one year in which to find any mistake he may have made; should he find one he can get back at most only the amount of his over-payment, and he has no statutory assurance that he will get anything.

It is an elementary principle that a debtor is entitled to know when he has discharged his debt. It is simple justice also that if the taxpayer must pay interest and penalties for having some time remitted too little, he should get at least interest where he has remitted too much. Nor should the taxpayer who has overpaid have to discover his mistake and apply for a refund; his return is checked by the departmental officials in any case, and they should send back any money due to him as a matter of routine procedure and common honesty. But they don't.

The income tax law is badly in need of revision. It should be overhauled thoroughly at the coming session of parliament.

To Follow Italy's Lead?

If much smoke is a sign that fire has broken out, Rumania is suffering anticipatory jitters at the approach of the Russian forces, now 200 miles or so from the border. There are plenty of reports to that effect, coming from several quarters.

The civilian population, according to one report, has been ordered to evacuate Bessarabia, the province that has changed hands several times and is now Rumanian by grace of Hitler. Another rumor is that King Michael has left the capital, with the intention of flying somewhere to try to make peace with the Allies.

Circumstances give probability to both these supposed moves. Bessarabia lies nearest to Russia, and the evacuation of Rumanian civilians would be normal procedure since the battle is rolling in that direction. There is no reason to believe that Rumanians threw in their lot with Hitler voluntarily, and that the King would try to detach the country from the Fuehrer's satellite line-up when occasion offered has been open to surmise.

Rumania was in as tight a spot as Poland when the Nazis started their eastward sweep. It could not fight them with any chance of defending itself. It had a long-standing boundary dispute which forbade it making alliance with Russia. To the south was pro-Nazi Bulgaria, and to the west over-run Yugoslavia. The Nazi element took advantage of the situation, got into power by a show of force, and made the country one of Hitler's little and doubtfully-willing subject-states.

Nothing that King Michael can now do is likely to save Rumania from becoming a battle-ground. But a break with Hitler might give it a better standing with the Allies when the settlement-time comes. Perhaps it will follow Italy's example.

Stockholm reports that the German high command has declared southern Poland to be a "direct war zone" and "old the horde of Nazi administrative officials they had better get out while the getting is good. Meaning no doubt that the officials should light out for home before the army comes along and clutters up the roads."

Spruce budworms have destroyed wholly or partially 40,000 square miles of forests in the eastern provinces and are spreading their ravages over widening areas from Ontario to the Atlantic seaboard. This is another reminder—coming from nature this time—that Canada needs a forestry policy that will check pests, clamp down on over-cutting, and reproduce forests as fast as they disappear.

Spain continues to send out information about Allied convoys moving from Gibraltar into the Mediterranean. Since it is of no use to any other parties, the object must be to tell Hitler's armies where they can find Allied troopships and transports to sink. Franco is still sitting on the side line as a neutral, but somebody with his permission is wiggling advice to his patron that may mean death to Allied soldiers and seamen.

Hon. Humphrey Mitchell says practically every coal miner in Canada who is physically fit is now digging coal. But the best he can say for the fuel situation is "the outlook has improved". Canadians should be thankful that the present winter has been milder than that a year ago; while remembering there is no guarantee that the mildness will continue. Wasting coal is a dangerous as well as an unpatriotic practice.

Total Australian casualties from the beginning of the war are given officially as 55,890, killed, wounded, missing and prisoner. Remembering the hard fighting through which the Australians went in Africa before they plunged into the jungles of New Guinea, this showing is remarkable. Large as the figures are, a far larger total might have been expected. The Aussies are known to the world—and to the enemy in particular—as hard fighters. Evidently they also know how to take care of themselves.

Many Strange Factors in Campaign in Pacific Area

By B. T. RICHARDSON

BRISBANE, Aus.—What the Allies need more than anything else in the Pacific is a substitute for island-hopping. That puts the problem in simple terms but everything involved in the defeat of Japan comes within it. The Allies have still to deliver any decisive blow against Japan in this war.

Australian opinion concentrates on operations now directed against Rabaul, the Japanese base in New Britain. The Japs have been in Rabaul since Jan. 22, 1942. They have been in Bougainville since Jan. 24, 1942. They were in Salamaua and Lae in New Guinea since March 8, and were advancing in the central Solomons in the middle of March. They were headed overland from Lae to Port Moresby about the same time. Meanwhile, Singapore had fallen on Feb. 15, and the Japs were bombing Darwin on Feb. 19. Batavia was taken on March 6. An American naval force had reached Wellington, New Zealand, 3,000 miles to the southeast of Moresby, on Feb. 10, and U.S. land and air forces began to reach Australia in the middle of March. The American headquarters were first at Melbourne, and General MacArthur arrived on

God's Laws First

Editor, Bulletin: Some time ago I noticed a letter, the writer of which mentioned the Ten Commandments. I was wondering why these, God's laws, are not placed in public buildings and schools. We often see man-made laws. Surely these Ten Commandments are acceptable to all races, color and creeds.

I have noticed Bible texts in street cars, and I think there should be more of them. Also, what about a religious teacher in the schools for those who desire such. We need a better world. Let us start by putting God and his laws first. He who said: "I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and end."

Church Broadcasts

Editor Bulletin: It has just come to my attention that under the new revised schedule of the CBC programs that church services between the hour of 8 p.m. and 9 p.m. will be debarred from broadcasting, and in the coming fall that period will be extended to read between the hours of 7 p.m. and 10 p.m.

Such a drastic step is to be regretted at this particular time when many citizens in districts where church services are very few, and far between are denied the long enjoyed privilege of listening to a Sunday evening church service, and getting that comfort they sorely need in this national time of sorrow and suspense because of loved ones far away fighting for freedom.

Surely it should be possible for arrangements to be made whereby the privilege of broadcasting Sunday evening services can be retained. How is national unity to be preserved if we are going to rob many hundreds of thousands of citizens who are unable to attend church, of the privilege of listening to a service which is vital to their existence and morale?

With two national broadcasting systems in being, one would have thought that our national leaders would have made increased provisions for broadcasting church services. Is there something behind this move? I wonder!

Illegitimate Children

Editor, Bulletin: May I make my protest against the ruling of the department of justice regarding the status of illegitimate children and taxation.

What will the fathers of such children who are overseas risking their lives for our freedom, think when they hear of this ruling? Is this the way we build up their morale? Are these the kind of pleasant thoughts that the soldier must carry into battle with him? Will these children be exempt from the armed services when they are 17 and when they're 21 will their vote be cancelled? Allies Require a Substitute for Island Hopping

March 1 from the Philippines. That was 1942 when the Japanese were expected to establish a foothold in northern Australia, which lay on the right flank of their drive into the South Pacific. Bataan fell on April 9, Corregidor on May 6. The telephone operator at MacArthur's headquarters in the Southwest Pacific answers a call by saying: "Bataan."

The tide of Japanese expansion halted in the Battle of the Coral Sea, May 4-8, 1942. Japan's objective, it is now generally accepted, was South America, where Axis plans had already prepared a fifth column in expectation that a direct southern front against the United States would be created in the course of a year or so. Since May, 1942, the slow massing of forces by the Allies, mainly Americans plus Australian troops, returned from the Middle East and recruits raised from Australia and New Zealand, has permitted slow, limited offensives. In August, 1942, U.S. marines captured Guadalcanal. The Japanese were halted in the midst of the Owen Stanley mountains behind Port Moresby, by Australian militiamen, a type described in some Canadian circles as "zombies." Months later, MacArthur's Australians were strong enough to begin probing at the Japs on the northeastern coast of New Guinea. Buna was taken on Jan. 1, 1943; by September, Salamaua and Lae, only 300 and 400 miles farther, were taken. In October, Finschhafen was taken, and up the Markham River valley out of Lae, an Australian force all this time has been edging through the jungle and over mountains until it is in the Ramu Valley, amid 11,000-foot peaks in the Finisterre mountains, headed for Madang. In November, the Americans landed on Bougainville, whence the Japs are pulling out in view of the threat of being cut off with the possible fall of Rabaul. The Americans landed at Arave peninsula on New Britain on Dec. 16, 1943. With stiff fighting ahead, Rabaul may be taken in six weeks or two months.

Japan is fighting a holding war. The Allies have masked Rabaul by their Solomons and New Guinea advances. But Rabaul is 3,000 miles from Tokyo. Eight hundred miles north of Rabaul lies the island fortress of Truk, real anchor of Japanese strength in the south. Hitherto, so short has Allied strength been that a blow at one point could not be made without drawing reserves from another sector. The comparable position in Italy would be to move forces back and forth from the 6th to the 8th army sectors for successive blows.

Forces under Admiral Nimitz of Central Pacific command cleared the Japs from the Gilbert Islands in November and brought the Marshall Islands under threat. This places them 1,500 miles from Truk. There are 600 islands in the Western Pacific, a high official reminded us. As long as the Allies can do nothing more than island-hop, the road to Tokyo will be slow, painful, perhaps endless. Damage being done to Japan so far lies in attrition, in bleeding Japanese of aircraft and ships, particularly smaller ships of types in which Japan is weak.

The strategy of defeating Japan has not yet begun to unfold. Forces required for massive strikes against main enemy outposts have not yet made their appearance. A program of powerful and long-range, amphibious attacks at selected Japanese bases would probably mean the Celebes after Rabaul. Success in this direction would pierce the outer screen of the Japanese base at Surabaya in Java. It would begin to cut off 1,000-mile and 1,500-mile tentacles of the Japanese occupation; it would begin to fix the left flank of the Southwest Pacific command; and it would fix a right flank for Lord Mountbatten's new Southwest Asia command. It would also fix the direction of Allied advance towards the Philippines and the southwest coast of China.

Two factors would have to develop simultaneously. Mountbatten's command, expected to open up in Burma, might become the destination of naval and amphibious forces transferred from the Mediterranean and the European theatre

Inter-Church Committee Provides Service for Outpost Districts

Church of Christ

H. Bruce Stainton, B.A., minister of Central Church of Christ who will preach at both services on Sunday. His topics, "Christian Only" and "Be Different." Later in January he will journey to Winnipeg to lead a "Christian Life" campaign.

The inter-church committee on camp and war production communities, formed by the Canadian Protestant Churches, with representatives from the Anglican, Baptist, Presbyterian and United churches all over the country, achieved its goal Friday with the arrival in Edmonton of the Rev. R. H. Williams, former pastor of the Northside Presbyterian Church, Regina, thus has been completed the formation of a church group to aid in community and war production religious activities.

Mr. Williams, on his way to take over the duties of ministering to residents of Norman Wells and Camp Canol, has arrived here accompanied by Rev. D. E. Amos of Brantford, Ont., who, in January 1943, pioneered in the task of serving the spiritual needs of camps and communities along the Alaska Highway.

In addition to Mr. Williams and Mr. Amos, the inter-church committee has sent an Anglican clergyman, the Rev. Robert Ward of Teslin Lake to serve on the northern part of the highway. The Rev. C. J. Smith of Swan River, a Baptist minister, returned to his home in October when the contractors' work was finished after service on the highway.

Thus the committee has provided a representative of each church to serve employees of projects along the Alaska Highway and Canol.

Mr. Amos, who has been roughing it during the last year, said that "It's been a real challenge and a joy to serve civilians in this new unfolding area of Canada—civilians from all parts of the continent who came up to work on the various projects."

Until he came up to serve along the Alaska Highway, Mr. Amos said, the only religious services conducted in the area were those by the Catholic priests resident at the Indian missions.

He emphasized the gratitude and interest of the workers for the operation of the church, and said that the visit of the chaplain was often anticipated as the social highlight in the isolated lives of the people at the camps.

"I found an eagerness for the ministries of a chaplain and I had the privilege of conducting the first protestant service of Norman Wells and Camp Canol in December 1943, Mr. Amos said.

Mr. Amos pointed out that one of the qualifications essential for a "camp minister" is "passion for people." He said that one day stops at the different camps made it necessary for the minister to get as close to as many persons as possible in the short space of time.

INFORMAL SERVICES
Services are conducted informally as a rule depending on the circumstances, he said. "They are usually held in the dining halls, sometimes in the bunk houses, and on one occasion I conducted a service in a camp hospital."

He is returning to his work of serving the now smaller but just as scattered maintenance camps along the highway while Mr. Williams is going up as a resident minister to provide services and a community program for residents at Norman Wells, Camp Canol and other camps along the pipe line.

Mr. Williams, who was president of the Regina Ministerial Association, was born at Dugannon, Ont., and received his education at the University of Toronto and Knox College.

Mr. Amos was educated at the University of Toronto and was graduated from Emanuel College in 1935.

"Growth in Grace" and "Christian Life" are the titles of sermons to be given in the Central Lutheran church Sunday. The Rev. Milton Johnson, pastor, will be in charge.

Two definite developments are certain: In the German and Japanese occupied lands, amid severe suffering and frustration there is a growing soul-hunger among men. In Asia, Africa and South America there is a great awakening to the need for literacy and spiritual enlightenment. Sends Message

The Rev. Charles G. Stone, minister of Park Road Baptist church, Toronto, formerly of First Baptist church, Edmonton, who has prepared a message, entitled: "Freedom of Worship," for readers of The Edmonton Bulletin. It will be published Saturday, Jan. 15.

The Rev. Donald C. Amos, B.A., will speak on "The Church's Work Along the Alaska Highway" when he is guest preacher at the First Presbyterian church Sunday morning. Regular services will be held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church with the Rev. H. Douglas Stewart, B.A., in charge. Glenn Campbell, B.A., will speak on "A Believing Generation" at the morning service in Strathcona Presbyterian. Charles McDonald will conduct the service in Westmount Presbyterian church and the Rev. William Simons will be in charge of the service in Rupert Street Presbyterian.

The Rev. Dr. E. T. Scragg will take the morning service in Robertson United church when his sermon will deal with "The Church and the World Outlook." In the evening the Rev. Dr. Murdoch MacKinnon, M.A., will speak to the congregation on "The Light of the World."

Regular services will be held in the Central Church of Christ Sunday when H. Bruce Stainton, B.A., will speak on "Christian Only" and "Be Different."

The pre-war world obtained 11,000,000 copies of the Scripture through the British and Foreign Bible Society, each year. In the post-war world the society anticipates greatly increased demands. You cannot build a Christian world without the basic books of the Christian Religion. But costs of paper and production have risen by more than 50 per cent. The Bible society's distorting depots in countries invaded by the enemy are empty; owing to enemy action, no less than $450,000 in Scriptures and proceeds from sales have been written off as lost; over half the world our work will need re-planing.

TODAY'S MESSAGE

By REV. L. KEITH DANIEL
Director, Church School and Young People's Work for the Baptist Union of Western Canada.

Home Religion

A FEW weeks ago I had a most interesting conversation with a ticket agent in a small town, who told me of the influence of his father upon his life. One incident stood out in his memory above all others. It was threshing time and the threshers were busy. When the belt on the machine kept slipping and they had to stop periodically for temporary repairs, their language was violently blasphemous. The boys, of course, ran all the way home from school to watch the threshers at work and arrived just in time to hear the violent explosion of profanity that accompanied a stop for repairs. Their father, a quiet, six-foot Scotsman, came out of the house and without raising his voice, said, "There now, that's enough of that." One of the men ripped out another stream of oaths. "Just a minute," said the farmer "either that language stops or you take your machine out of my yard." The boss of the threshers let him know in no uncertain terms that they were the only threshing gang in that part of the country and that if they didn't do the job, his grain wouldn't be threshed that Fall. The farmer looked him straight in the eyes and said, "I can afford to go without having my wheat threshed, but I can't afford to have my boys listen to that kind of language." The men went back to work and controlled their tongues.

Years later, the station-agent's brother told him of another revealing incident that took place about the same time. It was their custom to hold family worship every morning and the older lad suggested to his father that they should forego it next morning because it would cut into the threshers' time and he felt they would want to get right to work.

"Well now, son," said the father, "I don't think that will be necessary. We don't do this thing for show, you know, but because we believe in it and what it stands for. The threshers can stay if they wish, or go—that's their affair, and as far as losing time is concerned, I'm paying them by the day so any loss will be mine." They had family worship as usual and somehow it meant more to that boy from that time on and so did his father's God.

In the great work of Religious Education, we have for years been seeking to reach the boys and girls. Now, we are realizing that we must reach the home. After all, we only have the child for an hour on Sunday and possibly one more through the week and even if we make the most of our opportunity, we can hardly offset the influence of a careless, godless home. The home itself must be won for Christ, not only for the sake of the parents themselves, but for the sake of their children.

"Why do you always take your boy to Sunday School?" a man asked a very prominent and busy surgeon. "Because I know he will do what I say until he is thirteen or fourteen and then he will do what I do," said the doctor. Somehow I feel that the great leakage that occurs in our church work from about the age of fourteen on, is due primarily to the breakdown of home religion. We hear much about juvenile delinquency these days, and all sorts of suggestions are made for improving the situation, but I, personally, am convinced that the root of the problem is just this—that the Sunday School has become a substitute for home religion rather than a supplement to it! We won't win this battle until it's won in the home front. We must win the fathers and mothers for Christ and arouse the careless to a willingness to shoulder their responsibility for the religious upbringing of their children.

By the way, are you planning to take your son to Church and Sunday School tomorrow? If not, and if you have not been doing this right along, you should be big enough to apologize to the lad and to your Father, because you have been defrauding your child and His of a gift so valuable that all the other things a parent can give—food, shelter, comradeship, education—are beggared by comparison.

PRIVATE BREGER ABROAD

"C'mon! I don't care what they taught you about exposed rears!"

"Dashing Young Officer" Revealed as Ex-Private

VANCOUVER, Jan. 8.—(CP)—A dashing young Canadian army "lieutenant-colonel" who turned out to be an 18-year-old who saw two years service as a private overseas before being discharged, yesterday began serving three months in jail for illegally wearing the uniform and false pretences.

Edward J. Smith, sawmill worker who bought his uniform in a Vancouver department store and wore it six weeks while visiting officers' club and army barracks, pleaded guilty to both charges Thursday before Police Magistrate Mackenzie Matheson and drew concurrent sentences.

Smith enlisted in the 1st Battalion, Irish Fusiliers, in 1941, aged 15, and proceeded overseas, being discharged two years later for flat feet. He obtained employment in a mill here, where his hand was recently injured when struck by a bit of lumber. The court was told Smith intimidated his hand had been wounded in Sicily.

Smith's youth aroused curiosity when he appeared among other military men but he was said to have conducted himself in a dignified manner. The false pretences charge was laid in connection with a military raincoat he obtained from quartermaster's stores after signing a voucher "Lt-Col R. Bingham."

Now he is recovering at Hailor General hospital, Staten Island, New York.

Report Rumania Ready For Peace

By FRANK O'BRIEN
ISTANBUL, Jan. 8.—(AP)—As Gen. Nikolai Vatutin switched the main weight of the 1st Ukrainian army's offensive to the southwest, a highly placed Balkan informant declared last night that Rumania, directly in the path of the Soviet drive, was ready to ally behind Juliu Maniu to make peace with Russia.

The informant, whose identity cannot be revealed, declared that Maniu, Rumanian anti-Nazi leader, is delaying action only because of lack of a clear guarantee from the Allies, including Russia, that Rumania's future existence is assured.

Maniu was pictured as being able to rally the Rumanian army and practically all members of the present government and all ranks of the public for peace with Russia and the western allies. The nation under him was pictured here as being willing to accept the cession of Bessarabia to Russia if the return of Transylvania from Hungary is certain. Germany presented Transylvania to Hungary.

Many in Germany Oppose War, Nazi Newsman Asserts

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Marquis W. Childs, St. Louis Post-Dispatch correspondent, recently returned from Sweden, said last night there is undoubtedly widespread opposition inside Germany both to the Nazi regime and to the war.

"I got that from all returning travellers during my stay in Sweden," he told a meeting sponsored by the Americans friends of German Freedom.

"But all visitors to Germany also agreed that the Germans themselves have no hope of overthrowing the Hitler regime. They are well aware of the power of the internal police force that penetrates every phase of German life," he said.

Nanaimo Army Will Continue

NANAIMO, B.C., Jan. 8.—(CP)—President Jack Ryan of the Pacific Coast Senior Hockey League said last night he expects Nanaimo Army will continue to play scheduled games as this will not be in conflict with defence headquarters ruling barring soldier teams from Allan cup and Memorial cup play. Army would not participate in any league playoffs.

FIRES ARE COSTLY

The National Fire Protection Association estimates that in 1942 there were 665,000 U.S. fires, causing a property loss of $315 million. While these figures are somewhat less than in 1941, they are nevertheless appalling and no better New Year's resolution can be made than to carefully examine our home and business premises on the lookout for hazardous conditions and practices. Of the total number of fires, gas and gas appliances are charged with 5,000, less than one per cent. Smoking is by far the greatest fire cause with 130,000; next comes electricity and electric appliances with 73,000; defective and over-heated flues with 50,000, and defective heating equipment with 45,000.

The Bulletin's SPORT SHOW by Hal Dean

REDUCED to three clubs now following Friday night's meeting, the City Junior Hockey League will carry on for the balance of the season with teams representing H.M.C.S. Nonsuch and Canadian and Edmonton Athletic Clubs.

Navy plays the E.A.C. sextet at 119 Street rink this evening and Director W. G. Harris states that a revised schedule will be submitted for approval to the three clubs today. Three games each week will be provided for—Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays.

The junior circuit as organized earlier in the season consisted of No. 4 I.T.S., No. 3 "M" Depot, E.A.C. and Canadians. The Navy was admitted on Dec. 30. Prior to that date, however, the much discussed R.C.A.F. ruling came into force, effective as at Thursday, Jan. 6.

DOOR LEFT OPEN TO I.T.S.

ESTABLISHING a new high for a late start, only two junior games have been played to date. Canadians and E.A.C. opened the league on New Year's Day and No. 4 I.T.S. and Navy clashed on Monday last. "M" Depot was scheduled to play Canadians on Wednesday (Jan. 5), but for some as-yet-unexplained reason failed to appear on the ice.

There was no representative from "M" Depot at the meeting last night, but F.O. J. C. (Jack) Jamieson attended on behalf of I.T.S. The Depot team has, of course, been dropped, but I.T.S. will be at liberty to re-enter later on, should R.C.A.F. regulations make this possible.

There is no doubt but that the I.T.S. squad team would have been a real acquisition to local junior circles and it is unfortunate, not only for the league but for the fans as well, that the club which made such a fine impression last Monday has voluntarily withdrawn from competition. It was quite apparent to any person watching the

South Siders and E.A.C. Cop Midget Hockey Games

SOUTH SIDE outscored Canadian Athletic Club 5-3 on the 81 Ave. rink and E.A.C. squeezed out a 2-1 decision over Stadium Flyers at 119 Street in Friday night's game in the city Midget Hockey League.

As a result of their win, the E.A.C. boys are now leading the circuit with two straight triumphs for a total of four points. Maple Leafs and Maples, opening night winners did not play last night.

Two goals by Harry Jeske in the first period gave the E.A.C. team the margin over the Flyers. There was no scoring in the middle frame and although Flyers made a determined bid in the final chapter, Mundy alone was able to beat the good net-minding of Barry Shields. Playing on their home ice, the South Siders went ahead of Canadians on Crozier's goal in the first period. Combining with Jovett, Bob Fleming evened the score early in the second stanza, but Goodwin counted another and Crozier's second goal on Ego's assist gave the South Side boys a 3-1 advantage. Campbell cut the margin to 2-2 just before the period ended.

Johannson and Ego added two more in the last heat, while Taylor scored for Canadians.

Aircraft, Bees Defeated

Bissell and Y Aces Win In Girls' Basketball Loop

Bissell handed Aircraft Repair a 40-18 setback in the second half and the Y. Aces defeated Y. Bees 28-16 in the curtain raiser of the City Girls' Basketball League double-header played at the Y.W.C.A. Friday night.

Bella and Gwen Riddle, Dot Meyers and Edith Skitch led the Bissell girls to victory with eight points each, but Ruth Moore of Aircraft came through with the most noted effort, counting an even dozen to lead all scorers for the night. Ruth marked up a total of 11 before any other member of her club tallied.

Bissell outscored the losers 8-4 in the first quarter and 6-2 in the second to lead 14-6 at the half way mark. They (Bissell) continued to outpace their rivals in the second half by adding 10 to Aircraft's four in the third session and 16 to eight for the girls from the repair plant in the last.

Following are the lineups: Aircraft Repair—Ruth Moore (12), Jean Hight, Winnie Chambers, Dot Smackmuck (12), "Bubbles" Ferrer (2), Kay Elliott (2), V. Connaught, Total 18.

Bissell—Jean Chandler (14), Dorothy Chandler, Bella Riddle (10), Gwen Riddle (10), "Milly" Pullicky (4), Dot Meyers (8), Dot Quilley, Edith Skitch (6), Beryl Dean, Total 40.

ADA FORBES LEADS ACES TO 28-16 VICTORY Ada Forbes chalked up 10 points to pace the Y. Aces in their 28-16 triumph over Y. Bees in the opener of last night's twin bill. The Aces took an 8-6 lead in the first quarter, increased it to 18-8 in the second, added six to the

Byrd Cards 66 To Lead Field At Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Babe Ruth's former understudy with New York Yankees, Sammy Byrd, surprised everyone by grabbing the lead Friday in the $12,500 Los Angeles golf championship with a dazzling 66 over the par 71 Wilshire Country club course.

Byrd was superlative as he fired long ones and putted flawlessly and he rammed home six birdies. Slow greens spoiled the game of many a competitor in the field of 135 qualifiers. Willie Hunter of Los Angeles Riviera club and Olin Dutra, the host pro, all of whom had 69's.

Ellsworth Vines of Pasadena, former tennis champion who has been playing spectacularly all winter, carded a 70.

Among the sub-par rounds were those of Cpl. E. G. Wykowski, Sacramento, Calif., 35-35-70; Johnny Bulla, Chicago, 37-33-70; George Fazio, Pine Valley, N.J., 35-35-70; Amateur Ralph Evans, Ingleswood, Calif., 38-32-70; Leo Diegel, Tucson, Ariz., 34-36-70; W. A. Stackhouse, Sequim, Tex., 38-34-70.

Montgomery Gains Unpopular Verdict

DETROIT, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Former lightweight champion Bob Montgomery of Philadelphia gained an unpopular 10-round decision over Joe Peralta, Mexican lightweight from Douglas, Ariz., last night at Olympia stadium before 5,500 fight fans who paid $11,000. There were no knockdowns. Montgomery weighed 137, Peralta 134.

Montgomery had early difficulty finding the target with his right hand, and Peralta concentrated on the Bobcat's body to pile up a lead. Montgomery didn't come to life until the ninth when he tagged Peralta with a right in a neutral corner. The bell saved Peralta, however. Montgomery had a good 10th round, too, in his strong finish.

Sgt. Mac Colville—PLAYING COACH OF NEW YORK RANGERS FAME

League leadership in the Alberta Services Senior Hockey loop will be at stake at Victoria Arena in Calgary tonight when Sgt. Mac Colville, playing-coach of the Red Deer Army Wheelers from A20 Canadian Army Service Corps Training Centre at Red Deer, pits his squad against the A15 team from Currie Barracks. After winning their first three games by one goal margins, the Wheelers lost the next three by a single marker, but Playing-Coach Colville believes they'll be on the winning side of the ledger again tonight as the club is at full strength. Colville, who has been doing a masterful job in the dual role of coach and defenceman for the Wheelers, is an Edmontonian. He is 27 years of age, stands 5 feet 8½ inches and tips the beam at 190 lbs. With Ottawa Commandos last season when they captured the Allan cup, Colville was with New York Rangers from 1937 until 1941. A sergeant in the Canadian Army, he is an instructor at A20 Training Centre.

Gains Split Decision

Jack Forced to Go All-Out To Offset Lulu's Early Lead

BY SID FEDER

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(CP)—Beau Jack had to go all out down the stretch to take a 10-round decision from Lulu Costantino in Madison Square Garden last night after absorbing a boxing lesson in the early going that at times made the lightweight champion look like an awkward amateur.

A 1-to-4 underdog in the betting against the one-time shoe-shine boy from Georgia, Costantino danced all around him in the early heats, scoring with slicing left jabs and had the jumping jack missing punches by as much as three feet. He held an edge over the new York version of the 135-pound king for seven of the 10 rounds.

Then, in the eighth, Jack leaped in with a smashing hook that caught the local lurruper with his guard half down and snapped his head back and from there to the end he took the play, although in the 10th Lulu met the Beau headon and fought him to the wire.

On the Associated Press score card, Jack had five rounds to four for Costantino and one even. The officials were split on the verdict, with referee Eddie Josephs giving Costantino the fight, eight rounds to two. The judges, Bob Cunningham and Marty Monroe, voted for Jack, five rounds to four, with one even.

Hawks Pay $10,000 For Mike Karakas

PROVIDENCE, R.I., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Goalie Mike Karakas of Providence Reds was sold Friday to Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League for cash, believed to be upwards of $10,000, and two players. The Hawks sent goalie Vic Hightman and forward Gordon Buttry to the Reds and also gave them option on a third but undisclosed man.

Karakas broke into pro hockey with the Hawks in 1935-36 and won the Calder trophy as the outstanding rookie that season. He joins the Hawks in Detroit Sunday night. Mike was "farmed" to Providence mid-season in 1938-39 and sold to the Providence club the next year.

Artie Albert High Scorer In Twin Bill

The second round of the Edmonton Men's Basketball League swung into action at Westglen Friday night and saw U.S. Station Hospital withstand a last quarter offensive by the U.S. Quartermasters to win 37-30 in the "A" section game and Y.M.C.A. trim North West Division 37-22 in the "B" preliminary.

Phil Lusk paced Hospital in their hard-fought triumph with 10 points but Artie Albert, fast stepping forward of the Quartermasters, walked away with high scoring honors of the night when he dropped a total of 13 through the hoop.

Hospital took the lead from the opening whistle when Warren Taulbee tapped in his own rebound on the first rush of the game. And they added three more field baskets, marked up by Leonard Woodring, Lusk and George Ralph to count eight before Albert made good a free shot to open the scoring for the Quartermasters.

ESTABLISH LEAD

The winners' first eight points, which were scored in the opening six minutes of play enabled them to establish a lead the Quartermasters were unable to overcome although putting on a terrific last quarter drive which netted them 15 of their 30 markers.

George Horowitz came through with the losers' initial field goal following Alberta's free shot to make it 8-3 at the end of the first quarter.

The Quartermasters showed a little more fight in the second 10 minutes, but still were unable to out-score their rivals. Hospital counted eight to the former's six to lead at half time 16-9.

HOSPITAL WEAKENS

Play roughened up a little in the third session with a number of fouls being called and Jack Guthrie receiving his fourth of the night which put him out of the game. The victors continued to show their superiority, however, and scored 14—Woodring getting five, Lusk four, Taulbee and Morrison Kiefer two each and Nick Smagula one—in the third while they again held their opponents to six.

With the winners leading 30-15 going into the last chapter, the Quartermasters took advantage of a tiring Hospital squad and made them continue at a fast pace to keep from being overcome.

The closest Quartermasters came to Capt. Wayne Binns' eagles was five points, however, that being less than three minutes from the final whistle when Bill Flint, a new addition to Lt. George Haas' team, made the count 35-30. Lusk finished off the scoring with only a minute to go when he picked up the ball from under the basket and tossed in through the rim.

Y. OUTPACES N.W.D. IN SECOND HALF

Showing a decided edge in the last half when they counted 21 to their rivals' eight, Y.M.C.A. gained the initial victory in the second round of the Edmonton Men's Basketball League's "B" section by downing North West Division 37-22 in last night's opening fixture.

Grant DeFrain showed the way for the winners with 10 points, aided strongly by Cliff McLeod, who marked up eight while Charlie Sanford led the N.W.D. squad by equalling DeFrain's total.

The encounter was keenly contested in the first half with both teams counting six in the first quarter and Y adding 10 to N.W.D.'s eight in the second. There was no more than two points difference in the scores of each club until a few minutes from half time when Y.M.C.A. led 16-12 and in the first 20

New Problem for C.A.H.A.

Decision by Army Means Change in Hockey Playoffs

OTTAWA, Jan. 8.—(CP)—A defence department statement interpreted officially as permitting Army teams and players to continue competition in their present leagues but forbidding them to enter Allan and Memorial Cup play-offs last night put squarely before the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association the problem of figuring out "shadow" play-off series.

Hockey officials had just completed readjusting leagues schedules, upset by Wednesday's Air Force reaffirmation of a previous ruling that their teams and players were banned from anything but garrison and defence loop competition after Thursday.

Navy teams are still playing with civilian clubs in loops throughout the country. With no directive from Naval headquarters it is considered likely their status will remain unchanged and a Naval spokesman said "No statement on hockey is contemplated."

AFFECTS CIVILIAN CLUBS

The Army statement, like the one from the Air Force, means that many civilian clubs in quest of either the Allan or Memorial Cup will lose use of their Army players in play-offs. Ottawa Commandos of the Quebec Senior League, for instance, may win the league with the help of army men but they would have to drop them when they entered the play-offs.

Amplifying Friday's statement, an Army spokesman said: "Unlike the Air Force, the Army sets no specific date for withdrawing Army teams and army personnel from hockey competition leading toward Memorial or Allan Cup play-offs. 'There is no basic change in Army policy, although there now is a specific ruling on play-offs.' It can be assumed, therefore, that there will not be objection to Army teams and individual players continuing to play in their district leagues. However, if an Army team or a team which has some Army personnel should advance to inter-district play-offs, Army men would not be permitted to take part."

Here is the present senior hockey picture: 1. The Cape Breton Senior League, comprising Navy, Army and Air Force entries has already given up cup ambitions, and reverted to the status of a garrison league.

2. The Halifax City League's future will be decided at a meeting Monday when Halifax Navy and the civilian Crescents will discuss future operations. There was no Army team in this loop. The Air Force entry dropped out Thursday.

3. There are no cup contenders in Prince Edward Island. In New Brunswick, the team most affected is Saint John Beavers, and Army squad not yet in any league but previously expecting to enter Allan Cup play. The Army announcement might knock out plans for a senior New Brunswick league, composed of service and civilian teams.

4. The Quebec Senior League, which had earlier lost Montreal and Cornwall, Ont., Army entries, still has four teams—Quebec minutes the count was tied no fewer than four times.

The winners went ahead 23-16 in the third session with Bryan Duns-worth and McLeod hooping the baskets for the Y team and Carl Martindell getting the losers' lone two points.

This margin was increased to 15 in the last frame as Y.M.C.A. ran their total to 37 with McLeod getting five, DeFrain four, Norm Bradshaw and Gene Trademan two each and Bob Mitchell one, while Don Daynes, Tommy Cook and Bob Ferry each dropped a field goal through the hoop for N.W.D.

Following is the box score: N.W.D.—FS FT PS PT PF T Totals 11 48 0 3 6 22

Carr Improves Third Position

MONTREAL, Jan. 8.—(CP)—Lorne Carr, Toronto, collected one goal and an assist last night when Leafs whipped Chicago Black Hawks 6-1 to strengthen his position in third place in the National Hockey League's high scoring list. Other scoring leaders were idle.

TORONTO, Jan. 8.—(CP)—Dick Irvin couldn't believe it if he hadn't seen it with his own eyes. The Montreal Canadiens' coach says his players actually are concerned about something other than their share of goals and assists. Canadiens, Dick told Dink Carroll of the Montreal Gazette, are willing to take time out from their goal-scoring and help goal Bill Durnan. "Against the Red Wings the other night, after we scored our first three goals, the fellows said, 'We've got enough goals to win. Let's help Bill get a shut-out.' When Gross scored for Detroit they were as sore as if they'd lost the game. I've never seen it happen like that before in all the time I've been in hockey."

Carroll adds this comment: "There was a little incident in that game which may explain the reason for Bill's popularity. He lost his stick and, while it was lying on the ice a Red Wing shot hit the goal-post. Canadiens cleared the puck and Bill retrieved his stick. Then he patted the goal-post affectionately and muttered, 'Good old goalpost!'"

IDENTIFY THIS REDHEAD:
He went from third trumpet in the Oxbow, Sask., town band to write sports in Winnipeg and Toronto, enlisted as an army private, went overseas as sergeant, then was recruited by his new paper as war correspondent. That's right! He's Ralph Allen of the Toronto Globe and Mail, home on furlough after a nifty job of reporting Canadians in action in Italy.

THIS WILL JAR YOU:
When the lowly New York Rangers obtained defenceman Bob Dill from Buffalo Bisons, the Montreal Herald headed the story: "Rangers get Dill, Hoping to get out of Pickle."

ACROSS CANADA:
New sports columnist of the Halifax Herald is Larry Honnor, whose newspaper experience has taken him to many Canadian cities. . . . Sgd. Ldr. James Harold Baird, who received a commendation in the New Year's honors list, is Jimmy Baird, former jockey who, with his brother Sammy, was a familiar figure on Western tracks before the war. Sammy is in the Royal Canadian Navy. . . . Gypster, King's Plate candidate of the Cosgrave Stable, is being trained at Florida's Hialeah Park.

INCIDENTALLY:
Spike Labrie, the former Ottawa athlete who made quite a name in sports at Halifax after joining the Navy, is reported in serious condition in hospital in Newfoundland following an operation on his head. It is reported the operation was to correct an old hockey injury and that he will never play football or hockey again. . . . E. O. Sitter, who died last week in Kingston, Ont., aged 80, was a former coach of Queen's University rugby teams and is credited with being the first to use a second line of defence in the Canadian game.

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin
Copyright, 1943, by British United Press
NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Rhode Island State's basketball team has rolled up the adding-machine total of 738 points while winning seven of eight games this season; yet its tallest player barely touches six feet.

This terrific scoring by comparatively small "whippet" squad might threaten the supremacy of skyscraper giants who have taken command of the American courts. It might—until one talks with Frank W. Keaney, Rhode coach.

Says Keaney, "Relax, my boy. Relax. There's nothing particularly significant about our scoring. We are not ushering in a new era in basketball. The old adage still holds true: A good big man can beat a good little man. Personally, I would like to have a team of good big men—fellows averaging about six foot five. Then I would show you some real scoring. But I haven't got that kind of men."

FIVE-FOOT NINE STAR
RHODE ISLAND'S star performer is Ernie Calverly, a frail little fellow packing only 138 pounds on a five-foot-nine frame. This sophomore, discharged by the Army because of a heart murmur, clicked off 235 points in eight contests. He registered 346 points last season, as a freshman playing on the Varsity.

Coach Keaney doubts that Calverly—during his sophomore, junior and senior years—will be able to exceed the 1,500 points amassed by Stan Modelewski, who finished at Rhode Island in 1941.

Keaney explained, over the telephone from Kingston, R.I., "Calverly might be able to make it if I could keep him in throughout every game. But I can't let him stay in too long, because of his ticker. I take him out just as soon as he begins to tire. Sometimes he's under more stress than the other boys on the team—when the opposition gangs up on him. I hope the boys from St. John's don't gang up on him Saturday night." Rhode Island plays St. John's at Madison Square Garden tonight.

Calverly is the only "veteran" on the squad, which includes one sub from last season's team and a flock of freshmen.

GO ALL OUT FOR POINTS
Keaney has coached basketball at Rhode Island State for 23 years. He now combines the duties of athletic director, basketball coach and basketball mentor. His philosophy of basketball is simply: "Outscore the other team." Hence, for several years Rhode Island State has been noted for its hell-for-leather, fire-house game and its big scores.

The Rams' all-out efforts for tallies have made them the most popular of all the teams that play annually at Madison Square Garden. While concentrating on scoring themselves, the Rhode Islanders are not too careful about the other team's tallies. Hence, both sides usually roll up staggering figures, much to the fans' delight.

This season, for example, they beat one Quonsett, R.I., naval station team, 125 to 78; but lost to another outfit of the same station, 61-72. They beat Northwestern, 84-44 Wednesday night.

The official scorers, at least, can be thankful that Rhode Island State's team is not composed of sky scrapers.

Adulator Takes Hialeah Feature

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Woodford farm's Adulator won the $5,000 added inaugural handicap Friday before several thousand spectators who turned out for the opening of Hialeah's 50-day winter race meeting.

The horse was coupled in the betting with Signator, and returned $7.40, $4.70 and $3.40 across the board.

Brolite farm's Roman Sox was second, paying $12 and $6.30, and Harvard Square was third at $6.40. Time was one minute, 12 2-5 seconds.

Jockey Ted Atkinson rated Adulator along well, and won in a driving finish.

Picture Finish At Moose Jaw

MOOSE JAW, Jan. 8.—(CP)—Scoring two goals in the last minute of play, Moose Jaw Canucks chalked up a 7-6 victory over the leading Regina Navy in a Southern Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League game here last night.

Bill Eluk who had a big night with five points, tied the game with 24 seconds remaining and fired the winner two seconds before the final whistle. Bud Mills, with two, and Geo. Rayment and Lou Hauck with one each scored the other Moose Jaw goals. Clayton White, the league's leading scorer, notched four, and Les Barrett and Ron Schatz, one each.

Lifts Suspension For the Duration

PORT ARTHUR, Jan. 8.—(CP)—Frank Sargent, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said yesterday a suspension imposed on Joe Gollat of Fort William early in the 1943-44 season, had been lifted for the duration of the war.

Gollat was suspended by the C.A.H.A. at the request of the National Hockey League for a breach of contract with the Buffalo club in the American League.

Mr. Sargent said the suspension may be imposed again following the war and the ruling entitled Gollat to play only in Fort William.

Esquimalt Beats Nanaimo by 7-2

VICTORIA, Jan. 8.—(CP)—Esquimalt Navy trounced Nanaimo Army 7-2 here last night in a Pacific Coast Senior Hockey League game before about 2,000 fans. The sailors, now in first place following withdrawal of Sea Island R.C.A.F. Seahawks, are 2½ games ahead of second-place Victoria Machinery Depot.

Stoker Joe McArthur, Stoker Hal Brown and AB. Murdo McKay each counted twice for Esquimalt and leading postman Porky Hulme got the other. Army scorers were Pte. Hal Mohs and Cpl. Suds Sutherland.

Redraft Schedule For O.H.A. Clubs

TORONTO, Jan. 8.—(CP)—Secretary W. A. Hewitt of the Ontario Hockey Association Friday announced that the O.H.A. sub-committee would meet Sunday with representatives of all senior clubs to redraft the schedule in view of the withdrawal of the R.C.A.F. team under an order from Air Force headquarters, effective Thursday.

Abbotts Beaten By Notre Dame

REGINA, Jan. 8.—(CP)—Wilcox Notre Dame Hounds remained in third place in the Southern Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League when they took a 7-4 victory from Regina Abbotts here last night.

Brown scored two for Hounds in the first period. Doug Tooke added two more and Norm Edwards and McCullough got the others in the third. Abbott scorers were Ed Varga, Joe Oberholfer, George Homenuk and Al Myers.

Major And Minor Notes

By John Oliver

ALTHOUGH at this writing the middle of May seems quite a distance in the offing, the time will pass all too rapidly if you happen to be a prospective competitor in the Alberta Musical Festival, or a teacher preparing candidates. Therefore, there is no time to be lost and preparations should commence at once, if they have not already done so. The 37th annual competition festival of the Alberta Musical Festival Association is scheduled to be held here from May 17 to 22. The place, or places in which the competitions will be held, will be announced later. The provincial festival rotates between this city, Calgary and Lethbridge, and therefore, is held in each city every three years. It has been a custom to promote local, or district festivals in the years in which the provincial event is held elsewhere. As the provincial festival is to be here this year, there will be no district event.

JOHN OLIVER

The provincial executive of the festival association is as follows: President, Howard Stutchbury, Edmonton; vice-president, H. H. Sharples, Calgary; secretary-treasurer, Herbert G. Turner, Edmonton; members, Mrs. T. Winslow Hamilton, Edmonton; Mrs. W. E. Robinson, Calgary; Mrs. Janet McLeod Lethbridge; H. W. Roberts, Calgary; Jesse Walker, Calgary; F. Jackson, Lethbridge; and Percy Cull, Lethbridge. The local committee which will be in charge of arranging and presenting the festival is as follows: Chairman, Howard Stutchbury; vice-chairman, Mrs. T. Winslow Hamilton; secretary-treasurer, Herbert G. Turner; members, Ralph R. Couper, the Rev. Father G. L. Green, Mrs. E. M. Holtzman; J. Norman Eagleson and V. A. Beringer.

The adjudicators are Sir Ernest MacMillan, of Toronto, and Max Pirani, widely-known concert pianist, teacher, adjudicator and examiner. Sir Ernest has been here before as an adjudicator, and also as an examiner for the Toronto Conservatory of Music, of which he is the recently-retired principal. It is worthy of special note that entries will not be accepted after April 17.

The festival syllabus has been prepared and copies are available. The genial, hard-working and informative secretary-treasurer, Mr. Turner, has established field offices at Heintzman and Company's store, 10139 Jasper avenue. He is available on three different phones, namely, 25962, 21217 and 82542. But remember, that he is a busy man and covers much territory, so if you don't contact him on the first call, try again.

Prospective competitors and their friends are well advised to keep in mind the extract from a statement by the late Sir Wilfrid Davies which is printed on the cover of the syllabus, namely, "In musical festivals the object is not to gain a prize, nor defeat a rival, but to pace one another on the road to excellence." Alas, too often the thought of merely winning has motivated entry into the festivals. On the other hand, there are instances of competitors entering year after year with no special thought or desire of winning. They simply want to enter for the joy and thrill of competition, and to hear what the adjudicators thought of them. More power to such contestants.

The syllabus reveals that there are many opportunities for pitting one's talents against others. Vocal and instrumental events range from primary classes to open competitions. There are choruses and orchestral events. Elocution and choral speaking competitions are being featured, and provision has been made as usual for school choruses.

There are a large number of scholarships and special awards to be won. While specific numbers are designated in some classes, the majority of events leave the selection of numbers to be performed to the contestant. The reason for this is the difficulty in obtaining music under prevailing conditions. In view of this, competitors should have two copies on hand, so one may be handed over to the adjudicator for perusal during the competition. Full information on the festival may be obtained from the syllabus, or from Mr. Turner.

Next Wednesday evening, Anne Brown, soprano, will appear in recital at McDougall auditorium as the fourth artist in the current season's Celebrity Series of concerts, sponsored by the Women's Musical Club. Although the Don Cossacks concert last night was sponsored by the club and actually was the fourth concert of the current season, it was an "added" attraction, outside of the regular series.

Miss Brown has been winning new laurels since she appeared on Broadway last season in a revival of George Gershwin's folk opera, "Porgy and Bess." Heading this way, she appeared in Buffalo recently and won whole-hearted approval. Incidentally, she will include two songs from "Porgy" on her program here.

Her complete program is as follows: Alleluia (17th Century Hymn) arranged by O'Connor-Morris; Let Me Wander Not Unseen (L'Allegro); Handel; Pace, Pace, Mio Dio from "The Force of Destiny" by Verdi; Gretchen am Spinnrade, Schubert; Waldesgesprach, Schumann; Nell, Fauré; Nicolette, Ravel; A Dream, Grieg; When I Bring to You Colonial Toys, Carpenter; Rapunzel, Saccò; Recuerdos, Castelnuovo-Tedesca; City Called Heaven, spiritual, unaccompanied; Every Time I Feel the Spirit, arranged by L. Brown; two songs from "Porgy and Bess"; Summertime and Ma Man's Gone Now. Leo Mueller will be at the piano.

Max Pirani, noted concert pianist, teacher, adjudicator and examiner, who is a well-established recitalist here, will appear in recital at Convocation Hall at 8:30 p.m. Monday. His program will be as follows: Variations in F Minor, Haydn; Sonata in C, opus 53 (The Waldstein); Papillons, opus 2, Schumann; Intermezzo in B Flat Minor, and Rhapsody in C Minor, Brahms; Nocturne in C Sharp Minor, and Polonaise-Fantasia, Chopin.

Mr. Pirani was born in Australia and studied in England and the United States, where he commenced his concert career. He served in the Australian forces in the Great War of 1914-18, and after demobilization settled in London in 1920. With his wife, and Charles Hambourg, he formed the Pirani Trio in 1923, and he toured Europe and the British Empire, both as a soloist and ensemble player. He was appointed professor of piano at the Royal Academy of Music, London, in 1925, and since 1927 has been examined for the Associated Board of the Royal Schools of Music.

The Women's Musical Club will open the calendar year 1944 on Saturday next, Jan. 15, with a two-piano recital by the Calgary artists Mary Hughes and Marjorie Birch. Both hold the degrees of Licentiate of the Royal Schools of Music and Associate of the Toronto Conservatory of Music. Miss Hughes also is a gold medalist and a scholarship winner from the Royal Schools of Music, London. She has been a consistent Alberta Musical Festival winner, being twice awarded top honors in the open piano and open Bach competition, and once a winner in the concerto class. Miss Birch also has won high commendation from musical examiners and adjudicators, being particularly praised both for her facile technique and deep poetic feeling. It is expected that their recital will be one of the highlights of the current Women's Musical Club season.

Scharnhorst Shell Set Cruiser Afire

LONDON, Jan. 8.—(CP)—A shell from the German battleship Scharnhorst started a fire in the British cruiser Norfolk during the Arctic sea battle Dec. 26 in which the Scharnhorst was sunk but the blaze did not prevent the Norfolk, which first sighted the German battleship, from being in at the kill. It was disclosed yesterday by the Norfolk's commander, Capt. D. K. Bain.

Capt. Bain, who has been awarded the D.S.M., said, "We sighted her first, hit her first, and were the first of the British ships to be hit."

"It was due to our projectiles that she turned away the first time. She did some pretty good shooting and straddled us. Then we were hit with a couple of 11-inch shells. One raised a pretty good fire of igniting some oil. The other one caused some casualties."

Suspect "Outside Forces" in Revolt

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Secretary of State Hull said yesterday that information available here "increasingly strengthens the belief that forces outside of Bolivia and unfriendly to the defence of the American republics inspired and aided the Bolivian revolution."

Hull's statement came only a day after he announced his government's decision to exchange information with 18 other American nations about the origins of the recent revolution which placed Major Gualberto Villarroel in power.

Hull said that consultations already in progress "should soon permit each government to reach its own conclusions."

The resolution endorsed by all the American republics except Argentina and Bolivia provided that they would confer before any of them recognized the revolutionary regime in Bolivia.

Argentina, only American country maintaining relations with the Axis, recognized Villarroel's government last week.

Air Power

Military Aviation Landmark

By Maj. A. P. de Seversky

Continuing the brief survey of the role of air power during 1943, we must note the capture of the island of Pantelleria off Sicily on June 11, after eighteen days of continuous bombardment. The island surrendered to air power alone, and General Jimmy Doolittle was justified in asserting that it was "definitely a landmark in the history of military aviation."

On a miniature scale Pantelleria proved that air power alone could attain victory, provided the available force is commensurate with the task to be accomplished.

The collapse of the world's first, Fascist regime, that of Mussolini, and the surrender of Italy to the Allies shortly thereafter must be chalked up to air power. On July 19 some 500 planes bombed Rome for the first time. It was this and the threatened destruction of all great Italian cities from over-head which spelled the end of Italian resistance even before an Allied soldier set foot on the Italian mainland. Resistance to the Italian peninsula was taken over by the Germans. Our strategic air power has apparently been held on a tight leash for political reasons—the reluctance to destroy the cities of a nation that has become associated on our side of the struggle. It is becoming obvious, however, that mile-by-mile occupation of Italy will not spare the country from horrible devastation.

BATTLE OF SALERNO. The next vital event, from the aviation standpoint, was the battle of Salerno. Ignoring the lessons of Kasserine Pass, when our forces had ventured beyond the shielding wings of air power, we undertook a landing at the extreme range of our land-based aviation. We escaped disastrous defeat only through the ingenuity of airmen like General Spaatz, Air Marshal Tedder and Rear Admiral Sir Philip L. Vian. They improvised an ingenious defense which made it possible to use carrier planes. By using land-based aviation to protect the carriers, they freed the carrier-based aviation to protect the landing forces.

Winston Churchill, in a speech to the house of commons on September 21, acknowledged the narrow margin by which ingenious use of air power saved the whole undertaking. He said: "To have gone further north would have deprived our carriers of the support of shore-based aircraft and they would have become the sole object of the enemy's attack, thus absorbing their own air power for their own defense instead of helping the troops on the beaches."

An event of major importance, signalling a turn in the entire battle of Germany, was our attack in mid-October on the ball-bearing plants of Schweinfurt, when we lost sixty four-engine bombers and two fighters. It was then that the "trucking" phase of the bombing of Germany ended and a genuine battle started. The Germans sprang a surprise on us, in the form of an aerial torpedo. That was only one item in a greatly revitalized defensive air force on Germany's part that quickly ended the stage of mere "air raids." After that every raid became an air battle in a true contest for control of the skies.

From that time forward—and this is a matter which must be kept in the forefront in the early months of 1944—it was not so much a matter of bombing German industries as of destroying German air power. Until we cancel out Hitler's air forces, we cannot achieve important German industrial destruction except by paying with exorbitant losses in the air.

OPINION DIVIDED. Addressing a joint session of Congress back in May, Churchill had said: "Opinion, Mr. President, is divided as to whether the use of air power could by itself bring about the collapse of Germany or Italy. The experiment is well worth trying, so long as other measures are not excluded."

The "experiment" scored in Italy. As airmen see it, however, the German phase has as yet been inconclusive because the forces brought to bear have not been adequate for the job. General Eaker's hope, expressed at the outset of the American daylight operations over Germany, for bigger and better bombers and more of them has not yet come true. In the meantime, moreover, German defensive aviation had succeeded in stealing a march on Allied air power.

NAVAL STRATEGY. Another aerial event of 1943 that needs recording in any summary is the invasion of the Gilbert Islands by our Navy toward the end of November. It represented the start of an independent naval strategy of approach to Japan proper by acquiring a series of island bases. Land-based four-engine bombers and carrier forces were used in combination.

It required a colossal assemblage of naval forces, many thousands of planes to overcome what was, in the final analysis, an island ten miles long and 1,000 yards wide. The tremendous force needed and the heavy losses indicated again that amphibious warfare is the costliest of operations in this era of air power. An island-by-island approach at this price and with such gigantic forces in men and machines may become expensive beyond the point of being practical; indeed, beyond the industrial capacity and manpower resources even of the United States.

Crerar Pays Visit To Canuck Front

By DOUGLAS AMARON

WITH THE CANADIAN IN ITALY, Jan. 8.—(CP)—Lt. Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, commander of the Canadian Corps in Italy, visited the Canadian front Thursday. While he was there the Germans were shelling nearby positions.

Gen. Crerar met gunners and anti-tank men and also went to the headquarters of a French-Canadian unit.

On Wednesday he saw the men who captured the Adriatic coastal town of Ortona and walked about the town. Earlier in the week he conferred with Lt. Gen. Sir Oliver Leese, new commander of the British 8th army with which the Canadian 1st Division is fighting.

The position on the front remained unchanged Thursday as winter weather limited activity on both sides to patrolling.

The Canadians have cleared all the ground to within about a half-mile of the Arielli River, about five miles northwest of Ortona. The main enemy forces are north of the river but the Canadians are still in contact with rear-guard elements.

Report Taber Wells Out of Production

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., Jan. 8.—(CP)—The Herald said in a news-page story yesterday that four of five producing wells in the Taber oilfield, 35 miles east of here, "have been taken out of production and the fifth has been confined to a production test on the pump."

"The one on test, Dominion's 17, is making roughly 500 barrels per day and is the largest producer in Canada outside the Turner Valley, the paper said, adding that 'its output is being stored due to lack of a market.'"

The paper added: "Why 24,000 barrels or more of oil are being lost to Canada monthly in the proven Taber field is a question being raised by oil men."

GIRL WRITES F.D.R. FOR PUP AND GETS IT

STONEHAM, Mass., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Little girls often dream but this one did something about it—so yesterday the dream of 10-year-old Ann Gilcrest is a reality.

Ann dreamed of having a fluffy cocker spaniel to keep her mother and herself company while her father, Lieut. Alden C. Gilcrest, was fighting with the navy overseas. But cocker spaniels cost money and her mother told her they couldn't afford one. So Ann sat down and wrote a letter to the President.

The President turned the letter over to the Office of Price Administration and that agency discovered a federal employee about to leave Washington, who was trying to dispose of a cocker spaniel puppy.

Ann has her spaniel—and for free.

VANCOUVER, Jan. 8.—(CP)—Lieut. G. S. Canadian Naval Officer "Trips Up" Norse King

A BRITISH PORT, Jan. 8.—(CP)—Lieut. Eric Johnson of Vancouver, lanky Canadian naval officer whose long legs once tripped up the king of Norway, has arrived overseas from his first long leave in Canada since he went on loan to the British navy in 1941.

An R.C.N. press release last night said the lowering 38-year-old officer—stands six feet 5½ inches and weighs 215 pounds—is wondering where his legs will get him into difficulties next. He described his unorthodox introduction to King Haakon of Norway in London's august Senior Service Club this way: "I was relaxing there, almost full-length, in an easy-chair after a very good dinner, when I felt someone stumble over me, almost falling flat on his face. 'I jumped up to apologize, and the first thing I observed was a pair of blue sleeves with gold braid right up to the elbows. Their owner, the man I had tripped, recovered his balance and stood erect and looked at me—and he was almost as tall as I. 'Then I recognized King Haakon, whom I had noticed elsewhere around London. He was in the uniform of the commander-in-chief of the Norwegian navy. 'I blurted out something like, 'Oh, I'm terribly sorry, sir.' Then, for the first time, I noticed who was with the King—a British Admiral and a British General! 'King Haakon, bowing and smiling slightly, then started apologizing to me. 'I'm afraid I didn't watch where I was going,' he said. Next the Admiral and the General began apologizing, first to me and then to the King. In a moment everyone was begging pardon all around. Then we all broke into a laugh and the embarrassing incident was over."

Ask Franchises For Provincial Trucking Routes

CALGARY, Jan. 8.—(CP)—With a view to stabilizing the trucking industry in Alberta during the reconstruction period following the war and as a conservation measure for the duration of hostilities, the Alberta Motor Transport Association will introduce a bill at the next session of the Alberta legislature, to be implemented into the present Public Service Vehicle act.

This decision was agreed upon at a conference of more than 75 members of the association yesterday.

COVER ALL ROUTES

The bill suggests there be a common carrier franchise, but not an exclusive franchise which would cover all routes and points of delivery now serviced by an applicant. In review—any route for additional franchises, the principle of lack of adequate truck service to any point or points suggested for franchising would be primary consideration in the granting of the franchise.

Anyone now in operation as a common carrier would be given a franchise to continue present operations over the routes and to the points now serviced by him.

It was agreed all wartime controls should be removed from the trucking industry after the war. Federal interference in provincial controls was opposed.

Helicopter Travel Is Planned in N.S.

City Girl Is Lone Representative Of Fair Sex on Staging Route

The "Only Girl"

An Edmonton girl, Section Officer Alta Magoon, is the lone representative of her sex among R.C.A.F. personnel at units along Canada's aerial road to Tokyo, the Northwest Staging Route.

One of the first 150 to enlist in the Women's Division of the R.C.A.F. and among the first seven to join up in Edmonton in Oct. of 1941, Section Officer Magoon was posted to duties at headquarters of the staging route here as from Dec. 18, 1943.

One other woman, L.A.W. Sheppard, has been serving as a stenographer at the route headquarters but is on "loan" only from No. 3 Edmonton recruiting centre.

WORKING ON MESSING

SO. Magoon, who made her home in Edmonton before enlisting, is at present working on messing and rationing requirements for the personnel serving at the various units of the staging route between Edmonton and the border of Alaska.

At present she is eagerly looking forward to an expected familiarization flight over the staging route so that she may see at first hand the messing problems she now deals with on paper at headquarters in Edmonton.

All rations are flown by the Air Transport Command of the R.C.A.F. to the various units along the route.

As an Edmontonian, SO. Magoon is particularly interested in the Northwest Staging Route, which is destined to play such an important role in coming offensives against Japan.

And the Edmonton girl feels she has a personal account to square with the Axis, dating away back the very first day of hostilities between Great Britain and the German Reich in the present war.

WAS ON ATHENIA

As a passenger aboard the liner Athenia, torpedoed without warning off the coast of Scotland, on Sunday, Sept. 3, Miss Magoon was one of the first civilians to feel the weight of the Nazi mailed fist in the present struggle.

Although rescued and brought safely to North America, Miss

SO. Alta Magoon of this city, who is the sole representative of her sex included in the R.C.A.F. personnel of the Northwest Staging Route, the aerial highway leading to Tokyo.

Magoon will never forget the terror and confusion of the first of many unwarranted attacks on unarmed civilians. She suffered an injured ankle when she leaped eight feet into a lifeboat from the deck of the sinking liner.

And now if she can't square accounts against the Germans directly she'll "settle" for a chance to swat Hitler's barbaric Asiatic partners.

And the Northwest Staging Route points like a long curved rapier in the direction of Tokyo.

SO. Magoon enlisted as an airwoman second class, and advanced the hard way step by step to A.W.I. leading airwoman, corporal and sergeant to a commission in July of 1942.

THE QUESTION

What do you think of the proposal of a coal policy for Canada advocated by Hon. N. E. Tanner, minister of lands and mines?

THE ANSWERS

LEN LORDE, salesman: I can never understand why there has not been such a policy. Canada has the coal and yet millions of tons of coal are brought in from the United States, and even imported from Britain. This does not make sense when we have the product in our mines.

WILLIAM MCGILLICUDDY, miner: The adoption of a proper coal policy for Canada would save millions to the people of the Dominion and at the same time provide year-round work for Canadian miners.

HARRY OLIVER, clerk: I am hopeful that the present representations for a Canadian coal policy will be successful. For years this agitation has been before the public, but lack of drive has failed to make it stick. It is to be hoped that the present representations are not merely words.

Navy Requires Electricians For Enlistment

The Canadian Navy is among the world's most modern in the way of automatic control devices. As a result, electricians are needed in ever-increasing numbers. Lt. Cmdr. J. A. Dawson, commanding officer at H.M.C.S. Nonsuch said Saturday.

Lt. Cmdr. J. J. Smith, R.C.N.V.R. will be in Edmonton on Jan. 18 to interview applicants for enlistment.

These should have the following qualifications: Between 26 and 30 years old, seven years' experience as machinist, fitter and turner; instrument makers; maintenance electricians, general bench fitter, armature winders or telephone.

Men with less experience than seven years, but with good practical experience in the above trades, will be considered for entry as electrical artificer 5th class. Also young men who have good technical education and at least two years experience as electrical apprentice.

Unmarried men between the ages of 17 1/2 and 23 with grade eleven schooling have an exceptional opportunity for training and advancement in the R.R.A. branch of the Naval Service. Examination and selection will be made on Jan. 17. Applications for this branch should be submitted immediately, together with documentary proof of birth and education.

The recruiting officer at H.M.C.S. Nonsuch will interview applicants between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 6 p.m. or during the evenings by appointment.

A number of recruits are wanted in the R.C.N.R. Fleet Mail office. Men must have former postal experience and if available, in all respects can be enlisted as able seamen. Applicants should be between 18 and 45.

Hamly Press Banquet, Dance Huge Success

The annual banquet of The Hamly Press Limited, given by the management for staff members was held on Thursday evening at the Masonic Temple. Almost a one hundred percent turn-out was on hand at 6:30 p.m. to enjoy turkey and all the trimmings. A special grace was given by Mr. George Hutchison. At the head table were young Mr. and Mrs. N. L. Hamly, senior; Mr. and Mrs. Herb Hamly; Mr. and Mrs. S. Colvin Hamly; Mrs. Bartley, and Mr. William (Bill) Priestley. After everything edible had been eaten there was a lively program of entertainment planned by Mr. Herb Hamly, Miss Lola Dyster, Mr. Ab Waring, Miss Grace Willets, Mr. Cy Bushe, and Mr. Bus Brown. This included games, sing-song and dancing.

In the string-drawing contest the winners were: David Husband, Ella Queregesser, and Grace Willets. In the gum-moulding contest the winners were: Walter Mandick, first, with his gum dinosaur; George Bennett, second, with his gum telephone pole; Mrs. Herb Hamly, third, with her gum scissors, and Mrs. MacMillan, fourth, with her gum table.

In the dancing contests, Min Archambault and Dan Gerlitz won the spot dance. Ella Queregesser and Dan Gerlitz won the elimination dance. Erica Haynes and Bill Brown came out on top in the jitterbug contest.

A real sensation of the evening was the discovery that the certain distinguished visitor known to all as Professor Bob Fitzgerald, was none other than Miss Marj. Carter, who baffled all with her perfect impersonation.

One of the highlights in the program was the performance in black magic by Mr. Jack Peters and Mr. Ted Saker.

A great deal of credit is due the pianist, Mrs. Bartley for keeping the dancers moving at a fast and furious clip all evening.

Those present at the party were: Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Hamly; Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Hamly; Mr. and Mrs. N. L. Revenues from the sale of cattle in the last year on the stockyards exceeded all past records. Receipts were also greater, and the average price a head also established a new high, being $24.67 as compared to $23.32 a head in 1942. The peak price for the year was in July when choice grain-fed steers topped at $12.75 per cwt. The 12-month average price basis good steers was $11.05 per cwt. as compared to $9.90 per cwt. in 1942. The low price period was in October when good steers averaged $10.67 per cwt. McKenney On Bridge

By WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY

America's Card Authority

Each year women are proving more and more that they play bridge just as well as men do. This year the national open pair championship was won by two women, Mrs. Erwin J. Seligman of New York and Mrs. Ruth Chase Goldberg of Philadelphia. Mrs. Seligman plays in few tournaments.

nevertheless for three straight years, with Mrs. Mae Rosen, she has won the national women's pair championship. This is the first title won by Mrs. Goldberg; in fact, it is the first tournament she has ever won.

Today's hand was played by Mrs. Seligman. The spade ace was ruffed with the four of hearts. The ace and king of diamonds were cashed and two of dummy's clubs were discarded. The five of diamonds was ruffed with the ten of hearts, a spade was ruffed with the jack of hearts. The six of spades was ruffed, a small club won with dummy's ace and another spade ruffed with Mrs. Seligman's last trump, the ace.

At this point she led the jack of diamonds, discarded dummy's jack of clubs, and East, with nothing but trump left, was forced to ruff with the three-spot. Now she had to lead into dummy's king-seven of trumps and Mrs. Seligman made five-odd.

Cut rosy apples into wedge-shaped pieces and serve them with pickles and green onions as a relish. They add color and will prove popular with your guests.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Boss More Interested In Sale Than Secretary

Average Employer Could Not Identify Hard Working Aide If She Were Run Over; Many Wives Are Too Suspicious

Most wives are jealous of their husbands' secretaries, or with-out, cause. Generally this is wasted emotion for, contrary to the movies, which always depict business offices as love nests, during their working hours men are more concerned with chasing the lady on the dollar than they are with flesh and blood female, however pulchritudinous she may be; and if the average employer's stenographer should be run over by an automobile on the streets, he wouldn't be able to give a good enough description of how she looked to enable the police to identify her.

Of course, there are Sugar Daddies who hire their stenographers for their shapes and not for their spelling, but, speaking by and large, most men are not flirtatiously inclined and those who are do their philandering after the shop shuts up, and with strange women, instead of the one with whom they have worked and wrangled all day.

OFTEN UNATTRACTIVE

Still, for all that, we cannot wonder that wives get green-eyed when they read in the papers of many eligible widowers, from Lloyd George down, have married their secretaries, and of how often it is the stenographer who figures in the divorce cases in which men have lost their taste for their mates. This brings about a situation which leaves women gasping for breath, and asking: "What has Miss Potchgot that I have not got?" For the secretary who captures the matrimonial prize, or breaks up a home, is not always young and beautiful and glamorous. Just as often she is as plain and middle-aged as the woman she supplants.

But I think the explanation is not hard to find. In the first place, the stenographer strives to please, and that is a charm that a woman can always conjure with. She has a good job and she wants to keep it so she tries to give satisfaction; whereas the wife knows she cannot be fired, so she takes liberties with her position. She should worry if her husband doesn't like her cooking, or the way she dresses, or the people she runs with. And nothing cools off a man's enthusiasm about marriage quicker than to discover that his wife regards him as just a mere husband who isn't worth dishing herself up for, or wasting money on him any coquetries, or even trying to keep him interested and amused.

KNOWS HOW TO HANDLE BOSS

The secretary plays up to her boss. When he is grouchy because business is bad, or because he drank too many cocktails the night before and didn't get enough sleep, she doesn't talk back to him. She smooths his fur the right way and yes-yeses him until he is purring under her hand and congratulating himself upon being such a wonderful executive.

When he criticizes her work, she doesn't burst into tears and tell him a few home truths. She merely apologizes for what is probably his mistake. She laughs at his old stories, instead of saying: "For Heaven's sake, are you going to drag out that old chestnut again?" For she knows that if the Office Wife treated her employer as the Home Wife does, the woman turnover in business would be something terrific.

The secretary who gets to be something more than a piece of office furniture studies her employer's business until she knows as much about it as he does, and she is just as much interested in it as he is. She is excited over every new deal he is trying to put over, and is willing to work her fingers to the bones to do all she can to help make it go through. She knows that she is sitting in the biggest gambling game in the world and she thrills to every subtle move in it.

Above all, she is never weary of listening to shop talk, and that makes many a stenographer more of a companion to her boss than his wife is, who yawns in his face.

When he tries to tell her about his plans and ambitions, and says: "For pity sake, can't you leave your office down town, instead of dragging it home with you every night?"

LOAF AFTER MARRIAGE

No secretary spends her time telling her employer her troubles, because she knows he has plenty of things to worry about of his own. Nor does she whine continually over not being able to do the things that rich women do. Nor is she perpetually asking for a raise in salary. Nor does she consider that having gotten a job she can loaf on it and not do anything to earn her pay, or else she wouldn't be a secretary very long. Yet there are plenty of wives who go on the principle that a marriage certificate entitles them to sit down on the do-nothing stool and howl for the balance of their lives.

If you will get this picture of a woman who comes down to work every morning spick and span and clean looking; who is an appeaser instead of a counter-irritant; who yes-yeses her employer instead of picking a fight with him; who puts her brains and her heart in her work and turns out a good job, and who has the same interests and speaks the same language her employer does, it will give you a rough idea of why so many men fall in love with their secretaries and marry them.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Just as soon as we have accustomed children to the subtle disciplines imposed by a schedule, we are very smart if we also begin to accustom them to change. Children very easily get "set" into routines and are unhappy when they are altered.

Whether we desire it or not, emergencies, illnesses, moving, all kinds of things bring about change and it is wise for the parent to initiate it occasionally just to show a child that there need be nothing unpleasant about it.

One may change the furniture in the child's bedroom so that he sleeps in a different position in the room. One can become so wedded to the same bed and the same place for it that sleep is impossible in any other bed or in any other room. While we cannot always switch rooms about at will, we can switch beds.

Mrs. J. S. wonders how she can change her two children, five and 3 1/2 from her room in which they have slept into a room of their own. "I couldn't manage a room for them before but now that we have one I would like to have them use it. The other day I approached them with the idea and they answered, 'No, I thought I had better wait to ask you before I did anything more.'"

It might have worked better had you made the change the moment the room was available. Now, I think, you had better concoct a little story about how and when they are going to move into their

From Mrs. Thomas Capek comes this Czechoslovakian recipe for a meal-in-a-dish chowder which is perfect for a Monday.

LENTIL CHOWDER

Take 1 lb. lentils, soak for 2 or 3 hours, put on to boil with plenty of water since it is to be soup, and salt. When nearly soft, put in with the lentils about 3 cups of raw peeled potatoes diced into small pieces. In a frying pan place 2 or 3 strips of bacon cut in thin strips, and one onion cut fine, and fry until slightly brown. Pour into the cooked lentils and stir well. The bacon fat should be the consistency of thick soup. Serve vinegar with this soup, for those who like to add a little zest.

Here's another economical foreign dish, contributed by Angela M. Carozzi.

PASTA E FAGIOLI

Soak one cup of navy beans overnight; start to cook in plenty of water. Add celery tops while cooking. Cook until beans are soft but not disintegrated. In a separate pot, start to boil about 1 1/2 quarts water. When boiling, add 1/4 lb. elbow macaroni and cook until well done. Strain and add to cooked beans, to which a little more water has been added.

In a frying pan, put about 2 tablespoons olive oil (or mixed oil) and brown in it one clove of garlic, cut into quarters. Remove garlic. Add 1/2 can tomato sauce and cook slowly for 20 minutes. Add salt and pepper to taste and 1/4 teaspoon chopped parsley, 1/4 tablespoon of oregano (Italian thyme). Add this sauce to macaroni and serve bean mixture. Cook together for about 10 minutes. This will serve 4 people.

Here's a Polish recipe from Mrs. Janina Domirski.

GOLARKI

One pound half-cooked meat (pork, veal or beef), 1/4 cup of cooked rice, 1/2 onion, fried and chopped, 1/2 pound half-cooked mushrooms (cooked in stock or water, the residue of which is kept for use in latter part of this recipe), 3 tablespoons shortening (butter or vegetable), salt and pepper to taste. Mix all ingredients together, then add stock of mushrooms. Carefully loosen leaves of half-cooked cabbage, and stuff these leaves with mixture, and fasten with tooth pick. Fry in vegetable shortening, or place in a pot, pour stock over them, and cook in a moderate oven until tender.

Many Air Cadets Pass Examinations

A number of brand new stripes have appeared in the squadron recently.

All 34 cadets were chosen to study the duties of N.C.O.'s and have just been graduated after a thorough and extensive course. Before he could gain the coveted badges of rank, each cadet had to pass two examinations. One, a written test conducted by Flt. Lt. Campbell of the R.C.A.F., tested his understanding of discipline and drill theory. The second was a practical test of the cadet's ability to handle a flight and teach drill. On the average, marks were high, and 30 candidates were successful. FO L. P. Davis and PO J. Robson trained the N.C.O. class.

After the dance held in December, the squadron is paying more attention to social activities. Latest development is the organization of a permanent social committee in the senior squadron. Each of the three flights has elected representatives to sit on this committee and arrange activities. The new committee is fortunate in having at its disposal a considerable sum of money representing profits from the annual dance.

While on the subject of dances, it should be mentioned that the sea cadets have arranged a dance for Jan. 14, and have invited the air cadets to be their guests. The sea cadets are guests of the air cadets at their annual dance, and this is a return courtesy Relations between the two cadet corps were never better than they are now.

C.G.I.T. Is Facing Serious Problems

As a Canadian Girl in Training what challenges come to each of us?

This is the question C.G.I.T. girls are facing in groups all over Canada. Their answer to the challenge is "It is my purpose to cherish health, seek truth, know God and serve others."

How does a C.G.I.T. girl meet this challenge and fulfill her answer to the questions?

By learning to be useful, taking part in handicraft, first-aid, campcraft, Bible study, and other groups, giving them more wide-spread knowledge.

Sharing each other's views and opinions in discussions of current topics of interest to girls such as: boy and girl relationships, religion and post-war planning and many others.

Developing herself socially, skating parties, hikes, sleigh rides, parties, all of these and more are enjoyed by C. G. I. T. girls.

Making new friends is stressed as being very important and rallies, conference and church services always help girls to become acquainted.

All of these activities help a girl to develop individually to show her abilities and learn to accept responsibility and understand Christian teachings more fully.

ST. MARY'S HIGH
By Nora McGannon

Old Man Winter, with his low temperature and cold wind couldn't spoil our good time. Although it was originally planned to have a skating party before the sock dance the students decided to spend the night dancing in the heated auditorium. Dancing started at 8:30 p.m. and contrary to most of the dances the girls and boys began to crowd in at the start.

The customary Bingo dance was started out by Yvonne Olson and Jack Towers. Leap year seems to be the time to have a number of "ladies' choice" dances, to which the girls were all good sports, put over with much enthusiasm. Toward the end of the evening, that is, after the refreshments, two conga lines were formed. Maxine Wilkes led one line which succeeded in worming its way out of the centre of the big one and after much turning and weaving the exhausted participants fell into chairs.

Mrs. Devany, Miss Fagan and the Rev. Father Fitzgerald were surprised when it was announced to take the decorations down which, needless to say, was obeyed with much glee, but when every one was asked to put the decorations back nothing happened.

Thus the Students' Union of St. Mary's and St. Joseph's High schools started the year right with a very successful sock session. In the near future we hope to offer the students more enjoyable times, but until then they will continue dance and bowling clubs.

Kaye, Miss Lily Erickson, Miss Dorothy Skov, and Miss Linnea Wicklund. Auditors reported a successful year in spite of the heavy output for sick benefits.

What To Do

The era of formality and the formal social call has passed. There are few times in this present world when calls are made except in diplomatic circles.

One should call on a friend who has lost a dear one, or on a mother whose baby has just been born, or upon a girl whose engagement has just been announced. A call should be made on a hostess after she has entertained at a formal dinner.

In well bred society a call is always returned. A bride, or a visitor in a neighbourhood or a newcomer to a community should return calls of neighbors and acquaintances within ten days. To neglect to return the first call is rude, as it shows you do not wish to keep up the acquaintance.

In just a moment, you can mix a cough syrup that gives you about four times as much for your money, and is splendid for quick results. No cooking needed—it's no trouble at all. Then put 2½ ounces of Pinex (obtained from any druggist) into a 16 oz. bottle. Add your syrup, and you have 16 ounces of really effective cough medicine. It never spoils, lasts a family a long time, and children love it. This home mixture takes right hold of a cough. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and quickly eases soreness and difficult breathing. You'll say it's very satisfying in its action. Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for prompt action in coughs and bronchial irritations. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Varsity Life In Far North Is Attractive

By ENID NEMY

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Jan. 8.—(CP)—Trudging to classes in the dark of the "Arctic Night" may seem a bit queer to Canadians but that is what 1,300 students at the University of Alaska do each winter.

The student body, including native Alaskans, Eskimos, Americans and Canadians, many of whom previously attended "outside" universities, nevertheless find something in Alaska that other colleges lack. "It may be the lure of the north," says Betty Thies, a senior student, "or it may be just the love of something different, but whatever it is, it certainly gets you."

The university is situated three miles west of Fairbanks, overlooking Tanana Valley and co-eds are greatly outnumbered by men. Girls usually take arts, science, education or business administration. The boys go in for engineering and mining. The majority of the students are entirely self-supporting. Girls take jobs at army posts during the summer and the men get practical experience at the mines.

There are four dormitories on the campus; three for men and one for women. The women's dormitory, "The Harriet Hess Hall," is a three-story, fully modern, reinforced concrete building with accommodations for 84 girls.

MAKE OWN FUN

Isolated from the rest of the world, students have to make their own fun. Skiing on adjacent slopes is a favorite sport, as is playing basketball and badminton in their modern gymnasium. Dancing schottisches and polkas to the music of their own orchestra is also enjoyed. For extra-curricular activities there is the Choral Club, Dramatic Society, Major A club (athletics) and the Rifle team.

As modern as any other university, it has a monthly, eight-page newspaper, "The Farthest North Collegian." One thousand copies are run off the first of every month. The students also publish a yearbook—"The Denali."

In the matter of clothes, the Alaskan co-eds taste is almost identical with that of her Canadian sisters. During cold weather, style is sacrificed for comfort, with ski suits being worn to classes. Fur coats are expensive but many girls have them while others wear warm Eskimo parkas. The most characteristic article of winter wear are mukluks—Eskimo fur boots. In extremely cold weather co-eds go to dances with "storm pants" (long-legged red underwear for skiers) under their evening dresses, mukluks on their feet and evening slippers tucked under their arms.

The war has come very close to Alaskan students. Red Cross activities, first aid lessons, war bond sales and hostessing at the U.S.O. club in Fairbanks, are all part of a co-eds' life while the men take military training and many have gone into the service. As Mrs. Druska Carr, the registrar, puts it, "We expect to continue to train young people to serve their country in the capacity for which they are best fitted and we stand ready to co-operate in any emergency."

Nurse Convalesces in England But Longs to Return to Africa

A CANADIAN ARMY HOSPITAL SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Jan. 8.—(CP)—Nursing Sister Frances Tetlow of Welland, Ont., doesn't look on front-line nursing as either adventurous or dangerous, even if her tropical experiences have landed her in hospital.

Jaundice and a form of arthritis that crippled her knee brought her back to England but she limps cheerfully around the hospital on crutches thinking longingly of her life in a tent hospital on the African desert.

"It took them a long time to convince me I should come back to England," she said. "Maybe they're right—but I would like to have stayed in North Africa. It wasn't exactly exciting—and there was nothing dangerous about it."

Miss Tetlow was with a Canadian General Hospital that moved to Africa in July. There were no buildings, so they set up their hospital under canvas on baked earth that turned to gumbo every time it rained.

It was so hot in the daytime the nurses wore khaki uniforms of light drill, and so cold at night they wore heavy battledress.

"It didn't take us long to get used to the life," she said. "The food was good. And we didn't see any activity—only a few planes at the time of the invasion of Sicily."

"Wounded Canadian boys coming back from the field were glad to have Canadian nurses. They said we talked their language."

Beside her bed was a beaming rubber "Ferdinand the Bull." "He goes everywhere with me, ever since I left Canada," she said.

"You know—the more I see of the world, the better I like Canada. Africa is interesting, but it isn't as romantic as we thought it would be—it's mostly smelly Arab towns."

Miss Tetlow, who trained in Toronto General Hospital, came to England with the first group of Canadian nurses in June, 1940.

It was so hot in the daytime the nurses wore khaki uniforms of light drill, and so cold at night they wore heavy battledress.

"It didn't take us long to get used to the life," she said. "The food was good. And we didn't see any activity—only a few planes at the time of the invasion of Sicily."

Woman Uninjured When Car Upsets

A woman autist was uninjured when her car turned on its side on 103 street hill, south of 100 avenue, at 5:15 p.m. Friday. A second vehicle, unable to stop, in spite of the operator's efforts to avoid striking the upset car, hit it but did not damage.

Mrs. J. Millar, 10658 85 avenue, stated that the hill was slippery and when she applied her brakes the auto swung toward the high bank, and then fell on its side.

The second vehicle, a taxi, appeared at the top of the hill at the same moment. Unable to stop, the taxi driver swung his machine in several directions while trying to prevent collision with the overturned vehicle.

Commerce Chamber Asking For Road

The Chamber of Commerce has sent a resolution to the provincial government urging consideration of the post-war construction of an approximate 190 miles all-weather road from Grimsshaw to Fort Vermilion, Reg. T. Rose, executive secretary said Saturday.

The resolution is based on representations made by the Associated Board of Trade north of Peace River, who have proposed the completion and hard surfacing of the present winter road from Grimsshaw to Mills Lake, N.W.T., or the alternative construction of a railway. The present road runs about 80 miles from Grimsshaw to Notikewin.

While the Chamber of Commerce feels at this time that the development of a railway would not be economical, Mr. Rose said, investigation should be made of the possibilities of providing an all-weather road at least as far as Ft. Vermilion, which is a large settlement halfway between Grimsshaw and Mills Lake.

Slight Changes in Ammunition Ration

Although there will be three times as many small arms shells produced in 1944 as in 1943, this increased production will stand at less than 70 per cent of a normal pre-war output, it has been stated by officials of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

Based on the experience of the first year of rationing of small arms ammunition, the W.P.T.B. is making slight changes in the order giving distribution to essential users. In this, advantage will continue to be taken of advice from provincial governments and from such groups as the Sheep Breeders' Association.

Certain types of ammunition no longer produced but still in stock will be removed from the ration.

Also, authorized purchasers such as licensed trappers, plant guards and municipal police forces, must now obtain prior approval for their purchases from local ration boards or branch ration offices. Approved and outstanding essentially certificates expired Dec. 31, 1943.

A birch tree with 200,000 leaves will give off between 700 and 900 gallons of water in a single summer day.

Search for Napoleon Robitaille, 72-year-old shipyard worker of Vancouver, who disappeared Tuesday evening, has failed to find any trace of him, J. E. Robitaille, 11309 33rd street, stated Friday. The elderly man did not check off shift at the shipyard and an immediate search was started, with provincial police at Vancouver conducting it. Mr. Robitaille resided in Edmonton from 1911 to 1923, when he went to live at the coast.

Walks Again

Eight months ago a young, broad-shouldered British sailor sat in a lifeboat bobbing on the Atlantic, saw men go raving mad and then die. Some jumped overboard. He felt his legs growing numb. He knew what that meant—gangrene and immersion foot, the dread infections of torpedoes. Ten days after his ship was sent to the bottom in a Nazi U-boat ambush he was picked up along with six other men—the only survivors of a crew of 78. Brought ashore, all seven had to have their feet amputated. Now the British sailor, Leading Seaman MacLennan Barnes is walking again on artificial legs fitted for him by surgeons at Camp Hill Military hospital, Halifax, N.S.

Alice Eland, pert and pretty New York model, is as pleased as she looks about the contract she signed in Los Angeles, Calif., to co-star with Charlie Chaplin in a new film. Supermen?

These German soldiers, unloading a Junkers transport plane in northern Italy, seem to be the real Nazi "supermen," apparently toting 500-pound bombs with the greatest of ease. But "bombs" are just lightweight gasoline containers Luftwaffe uses. Photo from neutral source.

Is "Modern Fagin"

Reputed a modern Manhattan "Fagin," Patrick Bartone, 31, is alleged by police to have tutored many New York teen age lads in streamlined methods of house-lifting. Under $50,000 bail and with five "pupils" under arrest, police claim the "pupils" allege Bartone paid them $27 for approximately $50,000 worth of loot.

Welcome Raid on Their Country

Yugoslav patriots welcomed this bombing attack by U.S. medium bombers on the Adriatic port of Sibenik. Harbor installations and railway yards were hit in the raid. The plane at the top has been patched from ack-ack hits received in previous raids.

With the Allies in Italy

British soldiers of the Eighth Army pause in their advance to bandage the leg of an Italian boy wounded by shellfire in the town of Lanciano, Italy.

Leaders to Victory

Appointed deputy commander of the Allied invasion forces is Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder, one of the war's most brilliant strategists and air victor in the Mediterranean. New commander of the Allied forces in the Middle East, with headquarters at Cairo, is Sir Ernest Paget, former commander of British home defence forces and of the Norwegian campaign.

Canadians Occupy Italy's "Little Stalingrad" After Bloody, Nine-Day Battle For Each Street

My Day

BY ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON—On Friday afternoon of last week I went over to the Stage Door Canteen at the Schubert-Belasco theatre to see an art exhibition. It consisted of portraits of soldiers, sailors, marines and coast guardsmen done by outstanding American artists at the canteen. These portraits are now on exhibition, but will later go to the mothers of the boys. The artists do this as their contribution to the war effort.

YOU'RE IN THE ARMY NOW

FUNNY BUSINESS

FRECKLES

CURIOUS WORLD

It began with the sister of a young Red Cross man, Mr. Don Montgomery, who has an enviable record for his work with the soldiers on New Guinea. Later, the four American labor people who had made the trip to Britain, came to tea. They visited the industries which are a counter-part of the industry in which they work here and then actually saw the performance at the front of the materials which they made.

They were accompanied by four British labor people, who have now come over here to visit our plants and to study our system. Talking to them was of very great interest to me. I shall be interested when the British men finish their tour to hear what their impressions are. They said that already they had learned some new things by visiting our factories.

These men also felt that they had been able to contribute something to us, both from the labor and management point of view. They have had labor management committees for twenty years or more over there, so, of course, on that score they are away ahead of us. But where we have these committees, they think we are doing an extraordinarily good job.

They cherish an American flag given by the workers of America to the workers of Great Britain in appreciation of the labor effort made during the war over there. They showed me the flag with the greatest of pride. I asked them what they felt about their women workers. The replied that they felt the women had done an extraordinary job and earned for themselves the consideration and recognition for the future.

A young sailor and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Egar, came to tea with me. It certainly is wonderful what seeing the White House means to people who have never had the opportunity before. They were breathless with excitement over the historical significance of each room.

One of the many things I regret about the war is that it closes the White House to so many people who gain much inspiration from seeing it. I shall welcome the day when it can be opened again to all citizens of the United States who come to see their capital city.

McCoy Health Service

The art of kindness is of the very greatest value to those who wish to enjoy good health.

When you are unkind, you are indulging in a destructive mental state and one which is a great waste of energy. If you are earnestly seeking good health, you can not afford to throw away energy in this manner, and should set about cultivating the constructive habit of kindness.

Yes, be kind if for no other reason than that it will help you to enjoy health more abundantly.

Kindness should be cultivated for the additional reason that it will make you happier. When you are doing a kindly thing for someone else you will enjoy a far greater happiness than when you are thinking only of yourself.

Train yourself to say the kindly thing, do the kindly thing, and think kindly of others. For example, when you are talking to your friend, standing there face to face with him, let your mind be hunting for some kindly thing you can say. Then say it. Say it out loud.

The good results which will follow will soon convince you that it is better to say the kindly thing than to say the critical thing. Kindness will leave a good taste in your mouth, and after your friend has left you, he will recall your conversation with pleasure and will wish to see you again.

Very often you will find kindness is returned to you in fuller measure than you gave as it is a common occurrence for it to be increased many times. We should regard kindness as a sort of investment. Most assuredly, kindness pays dividends and these dividends take the form of health and happiness—two blessings which money will not buy.

Take some of the ever-present now that you have, and invest it in kindness. You may be sure that your return will come.

I want you to do this for me: The minute you drop this article, look around for some kindly thing you can do. Find someone for whom you are able to perform a small kindness. Or, find some way to speak words of kindness to a person around you. Or, sit down and write a kindly letter to one of those old friends who is waiting to hear from you.

Do one kindly thing for somebody today.

Then each day from now on, practice the art of being kind. The art of kindness will not only make you happier but will add to your health. Thus you have a very selfish reason for practicing the unselfishness needed in being kind.

All questions regarding health and diet will be answered. Large, stamped, self-addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 150 words. Address McCoy Health Service, The McCoy Building, 1151 West 8th Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

GIDEON PLANISH

A Novel by Sinclair Lewis

Sinclair Lewis Goes to Bat With a Character Who Didn't Need to Know Anything About Anything to Tell Everybody About Everything

CHAPTER I

INTO the office of the dean of Adelbert College hastened a chunky young man with hair like a tortoise-shell cat. He glared down at the astonished dean, upraised a sturdy arm like a traffic officer, and bellowed:

"If they dare to come out in the open field and defend the gold standard as a good thing, we will fight them to the uttermost! Huh?"

"Yes, yes," the dean said, soothingly. He was an aging man and a careful scholar, for Adelbert was a respectable small Presbyterian college. And he was used to freshmen. But Gid Planish was furiously going on:

"Having behind us the producing masses of this nation and the world, supported by the industrial interests—"

The dean interrupted, "It's 'commercial interests', not 'industrial interests'. If you must quote William Jennings Bryan, do be accurate, my young friend."

Gid looked pained. Through all of his long and ambitious life—he was now eighteen—he had been oppressed by just such cynical misunderstanding. But he knew the Bryan speech clear to the end, and he was a natural public leader, who never wasted any information that he possessed. He roared on:

"—supported by the commercial interests, the laboring interests, and the toilers everywhere, we will answer their demand for a gold standard by saying to them: 'You shall not press down upon the brow of labor this crown of thorns, you shall not crucify mankind upon a cross of gold.' and look, Dean, I got to take Forensics and Extempore Speaking, I got to, that's what I came to Adelbert for, and I asked the prof—"

"The professor."

"Yuh, I asked the prof, and he said freshmen can't take Forensics, but I got to take it."

"Don't you think that Freshman Rhetoric and a nice course of Freshman English, Wordsworth and the daffodils, would satisfy you?"

"No, sir. I guess maybe it sounds highfalutin, but I got a kind of Message to deliver."

"And what is your message?"

Gid looked out at the waiting-room. No one was there but the dean's secretary. He insisted, mounting on his own eloquence:

"It seems to me, what this country needs is young men in politics that have higher standards of honesty and more profound knowledge of history, and, uh, well, of civics than the politicians of today, and who will advance the unfinished work lying before us of leading this country to, uh, higher standards of Freedom, Liberty, Equality, Fraternity, Freedom, and—well, I mean higher standards of—"

"Of Democracy."

"That's it. Of Democracy. So you see I got to take Forensics."

"How do you spell Forensics, young man?"

"I guess it's f-o-r-e-n-s-i-k-s. Can I take it?"

"No."

"What did you say, sir?"

"I said 'no.'"

"You mean I can't take Forensics?"

"No."

Gid went away, a little bewildered, as later in life he was so often to be bewildered by the world's inappreciation of people who want to help it.

A thin devil of a classmate leered at him as he crossed the waiting-room.

At Doc's Bar-B-Q Lunch, Gid was taking refreshment, this late afternoon of his second day at Adelbert College.

Next to the broad-armed chair which was also his dining-table he found the lean devil whom he had seen in the dean's office.

"How you makin' out?" said the devil.

"Oh, all right, I guess."

"Did you get in on the public-speaking course?"

"No, damn it."

"Why don't you try for the debating team?"

"Gosh, I've tried to try already. I went and saw the captain, and he told me you can't get on the team till you're a sophomore. Gosh, I guess they don't want freshmen to be intellectual and idealistic here. But I don't suppose you care a damn about that."

"What makes you think so?"

"You look so—Say, who do they call you?"

"Hatch Hewitt, my name is."

"Gideon Planish, mine is."

"Pleasedmeea."

"Pleasedmeea."

"What makes you think, do I care can freshmen be idealistic in this dump, Mr. Planish?"

"Well, I'll tell you, Mr. Hewitt, it's because you look like you'd make fun of sentimentalists."

"Maybe I would at that. Mr. Planish. But that's because I am an idealist."

"Is that a fact, Hatch? Well, well, is that a fact? Say, I'm tickled to death!"

...

Hatch's room was a stable. Gid romantically found: an old small stable built for a team of considerable horses, leaning and shaky with hayseeds caked about the windows. But it was as orderly as a widow's tea-room; a cot-bed in one stall, and in the other an old wood-stove and a wooden table with a dozen exactly arranged boxes.

"I do my own cooking here and just go to Doc's barbeque for a cup of coffee and company. With what I've saved, and a syndicate of papers for college news that I'm working up, I'll get through," said Hatch. "But this dump must look pretty messy."

"It's grand! It's Bohemian! Vie de Bohemia!"

"I hate Bohemians."

"Oh!"

"I like order and precision."

"Oh, you do?" Gid was not too meek about it.

"You—I suppose you have a handsome apartment, with a fumed-oak Morris chair."

"I have not! I just got a stuffy room in a boarding-house (I'll find out which flat I'll choose)."

"So you're going to be a Greek—to join a select young gentlemen's social club?"

"Why not?" Gid was admirably angry now: he was not much afraid of other people, only of himself.

"I'm a socialist young gent myself. Just too bad you don't like it."

"No, no, Gid! I guess I just have mental sour tomcat. You're okay. You're not content with this dumb world, the way it is, either—you're not mediocre. I don't think you are. Forgive me."

"So did Gid find his first friend, and they sat at the table drinking Hatch's privately brewed coffee—very thin and bitter—while Hatch glanced up at the small high window of the stable to make sure the Secret Service wasn't listening, and admitted his perilous secret."

"Gid, if you can't get into the debating club, why don't you, I'm going to start a Socialist Society."

"What? But socialism is against the home and marriage!"

"What of it?"

"Of course there's Gene Debs."

"Exactly."

"Then he's a grand guy."

"Exactly. And we'll have a lot of debates, and you can be in 'em. Maybe we'll challenge the entire college to a debate."

"That would be swell. I'd like to show up these galsoots that wouldn't take me in! I sure would! When do you start your society?"

"It's just started this minute. It only takes two fearless guys like me and you to unsettle one little college."

"Let's go!"

That was the entire struggle involved in the conversion of Gideon Planish to socialism. His deconversion was to take longer, a little longer.

CHAPTER II

The first meeting of the Adelbert College Socialist League, with all

Gid glared down at the astonished dean, upraised a sturdy arm like a traffic officer, and bellowed:

"If they dare to come out in the open field and defend the gold standard as a good thing, we will fight them to the uttermost! Huh?"

"Yes, yes," the dean said, soothingly.

As a professional, Gid was horrified. "You mean go on chewing the rag about all these mighty topics without organizing?"

"Why, yes. The natural form of organization must grow out of what we think and then decide to do."

Gid explained, with great sweetness and reasonableness:

"Never! The kind of organization you set up, and who's on the committees, decide what you can do, and what you do determines what you think. Honest, that's the straight goods; that's modern psychology. I know by experience. You bet."

The veteran nodded sagely. "That's the way I've seen it work, for many years now—ever since the Sixth Grade. We started in to collect litter on the school grounds, but do you know, we had such an active organization that we improved the whole basic idea, and turned it into a co-operative revolutionary fund to buy molasses popcorn. Yesir! And how can we raise money unless we have the right organization—fearless but flexible!"

"What do we want to raise money for?" they protested.

"So we can send out letters and do publicity and get more members."

Hatch suggested, "Then when we get more members, we can raise more money so we can get still more members!"

"Why certainly! And then when we get a lot of money, we can put on a real campaign and get a whole lot of members! That's what organization is. That's how you progress, in this old world!"

Some time during the evening there was an election of officers. Gid had assumed that he would be president.

He was president. Not only that, but without the least hesitation, he made an inaugural address:

However much they might disagree upon minor details such as the value of Christianity and of women, they stood shoulder to shoulder, through fire and obloquy, an army small but determined, invincible in their loyalty as in their enfranchised intellects and their common determination to throw off their chains, a force to make the blind monster of Capitalism look up from its prey in terror, denouncing unsparringly the capitalist tyranny of Compulsory Latin and demanding lower prices on tennis balls at the C.O.P.

He, their leader, would retire for meditation and consolidate his plans.

After this springing verbiage,

The church is the trap wherein the Capitalist class nabs the workers.

The church is the one union wherein all workers can defy the heathenism of the Capitalists. The Russians will have socialism first.

The Russians are lazy; they drink tea and read novels, and never will have socialism.

Adelbert College is in a class with Abraham Lincoln, science, football and the Packard car.

Adelbert College is snobbish and hasn't had a new idea since 1882.

With each of these opinions, Gid volupuously agreed. He felt that they were having a fine, free enlightening time, but at last he pounded on the table, with Hatch's dollar watch, and announced, "We're beginning to see light in this discussion. It's a sure-enough round table, all right. But before we try to go any further, it's time to organize. We got to decide on just who will map out each department of our activities."

"That makes sense," said Hatch.

Francis begged, "Oh, not yet! Let's spend a month or so searching each other's minds and sort of inspiring each other."

Comrades Traub, Klock and Tynne fled out, looking dazed.

Gid fretted, "Hatch, do you suppose we can trust those dubs to keep our plot absolutely dark till we're ready to spring socialism on the world?"

"Gid, do you think that pikers like me ought to have even a vote? Does your sea-green radicalism go that far?"

"Oh, yes."

"What's your real plan? To turn this thing into a rival of the orthodox Debating Society?"

Gid brought out a smile that Hatch could not withstand. "I haven't any idea. What do you think we ought to pull, Hatch? Any way, we got to get rid of Frank Tynne. Why, that goat would actually like to overthrow the Republican Party! But you're the brains in this gang. What shall we do with the League?"

"I'll think about it," said Hatch, in subjugation to a man whom he liked and envied and despised.

CHAPTER III

The dean of Adelbert College said feebly, "You again?"

Gid's expression declared that they were old and helpful friends; that he was fond of this aged pal, and glad to give him new vigor and ideas.

"Yes, sir. I thought you ought to know that I have founded a secret Socialist club."

"Well?"

"I just thought, if it was forbidden to have revolutionary clubs, I'd better report it, so it would be okay. Gosh, I guess it must be awful unusual to have secret juntas in Adelbert!"

"No, not unusual; a little annoying, perhaps, but not unusual. But it is somewhat rare for the chief instigator to come in and inform us."

"Would you like me to wind up the club, Dean? I'd be glad to, if you'd let me in on the course in Forensics. And in the circumstances, I guess I'd have to be taken into the debating society, too."

"Please—go—away!"

"Well, sir, you'll remember I warned you."

Upon Gid's suggestion, the Socialist League challenged the college debating society to a discussion of the government ownership of railroads, and that official body accepted, with the notion of having a practice match before the classic annual contest with the great University of Winnebec.

As he was often to do in his later career as a professional promoter of ideas, Gid nearly convinced himself of the truth of his own crusade. He was deciding to go out and nationalize all rails, he was beginning to believe he had invented collectivism, when the catastrophe struck them.

On October 2nd, they had the news that the plant of the Los Angeles Times, which had been burning up, with nineteen deaths, and the Adelbert Socialist League blew up with it.

The League now had nine members. Most of them would have preferred to meet dramatically at Hatch's stable, in conspiratorial darkness, but they were up against reality. They weren't merely defying God and the House of Morgan now; they were in danger of getting demerits from the dean. The executive committee gathered in a corner of the Y.M.C.A. lounge at three o'clock on a bright afternoon.

Gid panted, "Meancometorder, Lissen, Comrades, I think we better get the hell out of this Socialist club, or turn it into a literary society."

"You're going to lay down and take it? You mean you don't dare to face the ruling class and defy 'em when there's something to defem about?" demanded Hatch.

"Not at all! We'll call our literary society the Walt Whitman League. That's defiant enough for anybody! Whitman never went to college!" explained Gid. "There's nobody wants to hammer tyranny more than I do, but this isn't the time for it."

That was the death of the Adelbert Socialist League, and for the funeral there were no hymns, no flowers, and only such exhibits of Christian resignation as were provided by Francis Tynne.

On the day after the decease of the Socialist League, Gid sought out the secretary of the college debating society, reminded him that it had been announced on all bulletin boards that the society would debate with the Socialists, who had blown up the Times, personally, and suggested that the only way out of such a perilous connection would be for the debating society to elect Gid a member. Then, he might possibly think about killing off and generally disowning the League.

The debating society met, in haste, changed its constitution so that freshmen might be admitted, elected Gid, and thanked him for something—they weren't quite sure what—that he had done to save Adelbertan oratory from shame.

Late in the spring he was actually on the debating team which invaded and conquered Erasmus College; and the fame of Gideon Planish, established in the glorious annals of the college as that of Old Pug, for eleven years the baseball mascot.

Erasmus College was in Eastern Ohio, and Gid had never been so far East—almost into New York State!

With his associate debaters, including a very large Junior who sang grand opera in Dakotan, he travelled on a day coach to Erasmus. They had large stickers, "Adelbert Champion Debaters," on their suitcases, and they talked in enormous voices about taxation, to improve the minds of their fellow passengers.

At the debate, in the college chapel, there wasn't as large a crowd as he had hoped; in fact, there were less than a hundred—fact, there were less than seventy-five. The hosts explained that it just happened that there was also a basketball game tonight. But as Gid spoke, the crowd seemed to stretch out endless, and they were all his, all looking at him, all listening to him, and his power was on them.

For a moment he found it amusing that what he had said was the opposite of what he would have said for the Socialist League. Then it was the truth, and the only truth, and he had invented it. He maintained that the government ownership of railroads was, not only inefficient but naughty. He played on figures as on cello strings, and wound up his Message like a Beethoven finale:

"I think we have shown by the statistics of railroad operation in New Kamchatka how wasteful is the political control of transportation. But there is another aspect that is even more important: the spiritual side of this economic crime against suffering mankind."

"How would you like it if you were one of our fine, honest toilers, say, like a conductor on your own K line here, a man who has supported his family and paid his debts and his charities and his lodge dues, and been loyal to his State, his country, his God, and his company, and he finds that some apparently innocent passenger is nothing but a snoper, a Government spy, put there on the train by inimical politicians and bosses to see how many cash fares the conductor knocks down? Do you think any man could carry on, like the fine, honest workmen ought to in our land of liberty, in that atmosphere of political intrigue and distrust? Oh, to ask that question is to answer it! And so, finally, do you know what that kind of stuff is? It is nothing less than that menacing, that subversive, that most European doctrine—SOCIALISM!"

And Gid and God and the Adelbert team won the debate.

CHAPTER IV

Galop De Vache was a smallish town surrounding a State capitol building, and the capitol was a jungle of marble corridors and onyx pillars and cases of Civil War flags and marble ex-governors in frock coats, together with eight or ten rooms in which the State business was done. The gaudiest of these was the senate chamber, and when Gid, with Hatch, teetered down the steep stairs in the visitors' gallery, he was impressed.

The chamber was lined with mahogany, save for the front wall, which in one vast mosaic splashed with rose and gilt and scrollwork, recalled the history of the State. In front of the mural was the Lieutenant Governor's desk, upraised on yellow-and-black marble, and over the chamber the vast skylight was jewelled with the arms of every State in the Union.

Here was glory, here was high politics, here was marble, and Gid wanted to be standing upon this lofty and burning stone.

But he noticed, as he settled down and looked for flaws—a college senior has to be practical—that the 36 seats for senators were nothing but mahogany school desks. And how sick he was of schoolrooms and desks!

He had hoped for high oratory, about flags and eagles and the brawny arm of labor, but a bald fat man was on his feet, and while nobody seemed to listen, was mumbling:

"This bill—this 170—I know there's been opposition to it—the gentleman from Grolier County has been kicking about it—but it's been pretty well talked over in committee and I guess it's a sound bill, I don't know much about it—it's about muzzling dogs in the southern tier of counties."

Gid groaned, "Good God! So that's how senators trifle around when we elect 'em to preserve our liberties!"

The man on the throne, presumably the Lieutenant Governor, said something rapidly and entirely incomprehensible about the dog muzzle bill, there was a growl from the caged senators, and the measure seemed incredibly to have passed. It wouldn't have if he had been a senator. Gid asserted. But he was to hear still more abysmal legislation slide through, presented in the reading clerk's furry mumble—

"To amend the markets law in relation to the definition of 'limburger cheese'."

"To amend the education law in relation to school camps for children."

"To revive and extend the corporate existence of The Highlife Brewing Company of Monarch."

It was on this last that the ill-nerved Senator Kurshaw yawned most destructively, and walked out of the chamber.

"Now there's one representative of the people that seems to have an idea what it's all about!" said Gid. "Gosh, I wish I had a chance to talk with him."

"Why don't we just butt in and do it?"

...

The Financial Committee Room was a bareness of plaster and steel filing cabinets. Senator Kurshaw was at the end of a ponderous table, reading the Zenith Advocate Times—the sports page.

"How do you do, Senator?" said Gid.

"Huh?"

"We're a couple of college men, from Adelbert."

"Well?"

"I could see how amused you were by that Highlife Brewery Bill."

"What d'you mean, amused? Very necessary bill. What do you want?"

"Well, to be frank, I wanted to talk about entering politics."

"Go ahead. There's nothing to prevent you, if you're a citizen, and 21. Why talk to me about it?"

"I thought I might find it a little complicated, as a college man in politics."

"What about it? I'm a college man in politics. What do you expect to do, with your special knowledge of Cro-Magnon tribal lore?"

Gid was becoming decently angry. "I'd speak up for the people, that's what I'd do, and get 'em shorter hours and longer wages, more money, I mean—but I mean, of course, without allowing any of this tyranny of union labor. I'd denounce all these consolidations of predatory interests and—"

"What predatory interests do you mean? The farm-bloc or the Medical Association or the Methodist Church or your Adelbert Athletic Association?"

"You know what I mean! Anyway, I'd do something about justice and education and, well, I mean the larger issues, and not waste the public time on a lot of tripe about dog muzzles and limburger cheese!"

TCA Announces Control Office Will Come Here

Assistant vice president of the Trans-Canada Airlines, W. F. English, announced Saturday that the company's reservations control office will be moved to Edmonton from Winnipeg in about two months.

The handling of TCA communications from here would be expedited because "of Edmonton's central location in the whole of Western Canada."

Regarding the proposed air service from Winnipeg to Edmonton, Mr. English said that there were two problems which would have to be faced. The first and most important was that of completing airway and airport facilities along the route and the other problem was that of acquiring additional aircraft.

However, the TCA has received definite information from Ottawa that construction of facilities would proceed as soon as conditions warranted and that orders have already been placed for the purchase of radio range and other necessary equipment.

It is possible that the construction work on this route may begin in the spring of 1944.

HEAVY TRAFFIC

At the same time, Mr. English said that "Our Christmas mail and express traffic was very heavy. We had pretty much of an all-time record, what with traffic up between 40 and 50 per cent over last year."

In fact in many cases it was necessary to hold up passenger traffic to get the mail and express through in time for the Christmas holidays.

Mr. English noted that United States traffic on the TCA, which was at its heaviest during the summer and fall, has been falling off. This made it easier now to accommodate more regular business travel with less trouble about priorities.

Urge No Reprisals On War Prisoners

GENEVA, Jan. 8.—(AP)—The International committee of the Red Cross has appealed to all belligerents not to modify the status conferred by international agreement on war prisoners and civilian internees.

The appeal, communicated Dec. 30 to the belligerent powers and made public yesterday, reminded them that a 1929 convention expressly forbids reprisal measures against captives in enemy hands.

It said "whatever views the belligerent powers may hold on the legal possibility of prosecuting war prisoners for offences committed prior to their capture and allegedly imputable to them, these powers should never resort to such prosecutions by way of reprisal."

The committee added "this would appear more imperative for such acts 'would encounter grave difficulties in the establishment of the facts and the determination of accused persons' individual responsibility."

The committee "earnestly entreats all belligerent powers to abstain from reprisals against prisoners of war and interned persons of all categories who ceased to participate in the hostilities or have never done so and whose capture or condition deprives them of every element of self-defence."

Only 377 Japanese Prisoners Taken By Yank Forces

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Robert P. Patterson, United States under-secretary of war, announced at a press conference yesterday that only 377 Japanese prisoners have been taken by United States forces. He said he was making public the figure to illustrate the difficulty of the job of defeating Japan. "We know the Japanese will defend themselves with fanatical zeal against our assaults," he added. "That fanaticism is attested by the small number of Japanese prisoners we have taken."

Not Essential

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 8.—(AP)—The United States War Housing Authority rejected W. H. McCagar's application for a house on grounds that his job is not essential. McCagar is a United States Office of Price Administration official.

Million Dollars in Fur Flown From North

This has been a record winter for the shipment of furs out of the north country by plane. Between Christmas and New Year's Day no less than 20,135 pounds of Arctic Fox pelts were flown from the Western Arctic coast to Edmonton by Canadian Pacific Air Lines' planes. In the one week more than 40,000 pelts, valued at about $1,300,000 were carried by CPA. The northern portion of the flight was handled by Capt. Bud Potter in a ski-equipped Bellanca air cruiser and the fur was transferred at Norman Wells to Lockheed Lodestar land-plane freighters operating between that point and Edmonton. Walter E. Gilbert, superintendent, Mackenzie district, reports one of the heaviest years in northern flying. Bringing in one of the furs cargoes in a Lodestar, Capt. Stan Seaton set a record of four hours and 18 minutes from Norman Wells to Edmonton. Shown in the above picture beside the truckload of furs are Gordon Sramstad, CPA airport agent, and Lou Price, CPA truck driver.

Foreign "Views" On Russ Borders Are Unwelcome

By EDDIE GILMORE

MOSCOW, Jan. 8.—(AP)—The Soviets do not welcome any discussions from abroad or from foreigners here about Russia's borders. The best indication yet of this was the brush-off that Pravda, communist party paper, gave Wendell Willkie, unsuccessful Republican candidate in the 1940 United States presidential election, two days ago on the subject.

(Pravda attacked Willkie as a "political gambler" following publication of an article by him in the New York Times magazine section last Sunday. In the article, entitled, "Do not stir distrust of Russia," Willkie said:

"Our principal objective must now be to persuade Russia to accept and give the guarantees of a general organization, in which she and we are both members, rather than to seek her own protection by political and military control over adjoining territories.")

The Russians consider that the borders of the Soviet Union are their own business and, as stated once before, are no more a subject for discussion by Americans than are the borders of California by the Soviets.

The Soviets do not consider that the Red army has moved across any frontier or border in advancing towards Sarny or other points in Rovno province and their maps do not show any border there.

Right now the fighting is regarded just as it has been—for liberation of the fatherland from the German invader. It is clear that the Soviets do not intend to indulge even in any discussion of the matter.

Medical Group Opposes C.C.F. Medicine Plan

MONTREAL, Jan. 8.—(CP)—Dr. Harris McPhedran of Toronto, president-elect of the Canadian Medical Association, said here last night that "the medical profession wants no part of state medicine as proposed by the C.C.F."

Dr. McPhedran addressing a meeting of the Montreal Medical-Chirurgical society, said: "The C.C.F. would reduce physicians to the status of civil servants paying general practitioners a maximum yearly salary of $3,000 and specialists a maximum annual compensation of $6,000," he said.

Russian Aid Fund

TORONTO, Jan. 8.—(CP)—Headquarters of the Canadian Aid to Russia Fund today announced that a cheque for $13,680.36 from the Vancouver branch last week helped boost the fund to the present total of $3,300,067.67.

Coal Gas Fumes Take Three Lives

KINGSTON, Ont., Jan. 8.—(CP)—Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Marshall, both 50, and John Booth, 49, were asphyxiated early today in their home in Kingston's northern section. Police said coal gas fumes escaping from furnace pipes caused the deaths. Marshall, chief caretaker at headquarters of Military District No. 3 here, was a well known singer and entertainer who had appeared before the troops many times. Booth lived with the Marshalls.

Wheat Trading Is 'Stalemated'

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—(AP)—The wheat pit on the Chicago board of trade, last major exchange in the world where trading in the bread cereal has not been halted since the start of the war, yesterday was faced with the problem of a deadlocked market.

All wheat contracts yesterday advanced to levels from which they can go no higher, unless there is some revision in the maximums the board placed on futures following office of price administration setting of ceilings on cash wheat earlier this week.

The May, July and September contracts finished at the ceiling of $1.71½ a bushel, with offerings insufficient to meet the bids. Trading was stalemated. The December contract, in which there is little activity at present, closed at $1.71½, off ¼ from its top.

Thus the Chicago pit was following Liverpool, Winnipeg and other wheat markets in reaching a point where futures dealings in the world's basic grain can no longer be effected.

Brokerage Firm President Dead

HAMILTON, Ont., Jan. 8.—(CP)—James Alexander Henderson, 73, head of the brokerage firm of J. W. Bickle and Greening, died suddenly last night after suffering a heart attack near his home. His body was found alongside his car. For the past six years Mr. Henderson was grand secretary-general for Canada of the Supreme Council, Scottish Rite.

Selling Reduces Chicago Prices

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Deferred deliveries of wheat futures broke away from ceilings in late dealings today, selling by local traders outweighing demand which came from commission houses. Prices dropped about a cent from previous highs. Most of the selling was believed to represent profit-taking.

When earnings developed in wheat, other grains reacted from their day's highs. Rye, which had been up about a cent, dropped below the previous close at one time. Oats and barley were weaker. Rain and snow were reported over the southwest, providing needed moisture for that winter wheat area.

At the close wheat was unchanged to ¼ lower, oats were ¼-½ down, rye was ¼-½ lower, and barley was off ½-1.

Calgary Livestock Sales Set Record

CALGARY, Jan. 8.—(CP)—An all time record of $12,861,542.04 worth of livestock was sold through the Alberta stockyards, Calgary, during 1943 in the biggest year for livestock handlings in the history of the yards.

A total of 425,947 head of cattle, calves, hogs and sheep poured into the market, far outdistancing the 1942 record of 385,000 head. The estimated $12,861,542.04 in sales was divided as follows: 90,15

Large Increase Is Registered Stock Business

The general quality of the cattle received on the market declined 3.4 per cent from 1942. More cattle on the plain and half fat order were marketed. Of the total offerings only 18 per cent were considered of the good to choice variety, and the bulk of those were marketed in the early spring.

There was a total of 18,523 stockers and feeders taken out to farms and feed lots, as compared to 15,955 head the previous year. The supply of available beef throughout the coming season will, in all probability, be fairly liberal. Though there are few farmers feeding any large numbers, there are many farmers feeding a few head, which in the aggregate will likely furnish ample supplies.

There were 1,040 head shipped to Eastern Canada, and 196 to Saskatchewan, 116 to Manitoba, and 117 to British Columbia.

AVERAGE PRICE

The average price paid for good stocker and feeder cattle was $8.50 per cwt. The high figure was in July. However, the bulk of average quality varied from $8.50 to $9.50, practically throughout the entire year. Heifers were practically $1.00 per cwt. below steers and stock cows ranged from $5.00 to $7.50 per cwt. The average weight of all classes marketed was 754 lbs. Of the total cattle receipts 8.4 per cent graded good, 6.3 per cent common steers, 4 per cent good stock and heifers, and 1.9 per cent common.

HOG MARKETING

Hog marketings during 1943 increased by 14.7 per cent over the previous year. This increase was largely due to the very heavy marketings in the last quarter and local plants were not in a position to handle all the offerings. The bulk of the hogs were shipped to outside markets for slaughter.

Prices fluctuated considerably the first quarter due to the supply and demand. Receipts were somewhat spotty due to the severe weather during that period and short supplies forced the market up, and sharp increases in receipts caused a lower trend. The market from April to the middle of August witnessed only slight changes. From Aug. 15 to Nov. 13 prices remained constant at $15.25 basic. On Nov. 13 the Meat Board's order increasing the price of export bacon to the new contract level bolstered the basic price to $15.85 for local delivery. Hogs for coast shipment throughout most of the year had a price spread from 50 cents to 60 cents per cwt. above local quotations.

HIGHER WEIGHT

There was a general tendency to market hogs at a higher weight range which was largely responsible for the reduction in the number of A grade selections. The percentage of heavies and extra heavies increased by 3 per cent. The percentage of carcasses in the weight range from 171 to 185 lbs. also was considerably higher.

Marketings of sheep and lambs increased by 7,566 head or 33.7 per cent over 1942. Many farm flocks were established in the fall of 1942 due to the sheep expansion policy, the results of which showed a sub-

Loyal Edmonton Regiment

Time Magazine Pays Tribute

Can Think—and Fight as Well

Men of The Loyal Edmonton Regiment are given a big spread in Time Magazine of the current week.

More than a full column is taken up by an account of the recent presentation of a brief on rehabilitation to Hon. J. L. Ralston, minister of defence, by The Loyal Edmonton Regiment during his visit to Canadian troops in Italy. A large picture depicts men of the regiment in one of their social study classes, with the caption: "Loyal Edmontons... they can think as well as fight."

The writeup says in part: "As an outfit the Edmontons are proud of their fighting record in two World Wars. Jealous of the designation 'Loyal' as distinguished from the more common 'Royal'." "Last week, having proved they could think as well as fight, The Loyal Edmontons were fighting again in the 1st Canadian Division, in the spearhead of the British Eighth Army's drive up the Adriatic coast. Ortons, which they had helped clean out, was behind them."

Man Is Attacked, Robbed in Street

Attacking him as he walked in a lane between 102A and 103 avenues west of 99 street, at 4:30 a.m. Saturday, two men threw Mah Dong-hoy, 10315 98 street, to the ground, and took almost $1,000 from his pockets, according to city police.

Donghoy, police stated, was apparently on his way to a Jasper avenue cafe when he was robbed. After taking the money, the men were said to have run south to 102A avenue, where they got into a car and drove west to 101 street, and then turned north.

Donghoy was able to describe his assailants to police. A substantial increase in lamb marketings this year. There are no large flocks of sheep in this area, but small flocks are numerous and in the aggregate marketings made the total reasonably large for this market.

The average price for good handweights was $10.90 per cwt. as compared to $10.50 per cwt. last year. The general quality, however, of the lambs marketed was lower, since only 81.2 per cent were considered of this quality as compared to 77.8 per cent last year. A high percentage of the lambs offered were more or less of feeder quality. Marketings of common sheep more than doubled the previous year due to farmers liquidating their older ewes.

Three City Men Are Wounded Overseas

Three Edmonton men have been reported wounded in the Italian campaign, according to word received here. Two of them are members of The Loyal Edmonton Regiment.

Capt. Gilbert T. Blair was wounded Dec. 23. He is a nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Neilson J. McLean, 10134 123 street. His home is Drake, Sask., but he came to Edmonton to attend university.

He was graduated in arts in May of 1940 and went overseas in the same year, having enlisted in The Loyal Edmonton Regiment before graduation. He took part in the Sicilian campaign and then went on the Italian mainland with the regiment. He lost one brother, Clayton, an air gunner with the R.C.A.F., who was killed in action July 24, 1942.

Lt. Ralph Hyde, also wounded, is 21 and a graduate of the Royal Military College, Kingston. He went overseas in 1942 with a Canadian tank unit and took part in the fighting in Sicily. A brother John is a radio technician with the R.A.F. near Cairo. Lt. Hyde's father, E. E. Hyde, is a veteran of the last war and has served in this war with the rank of major. He is principal of Eastwood High School.

Sgt. Owen Ernest Jones, also of The Loyal Edmonton Regiment, was wounded in Italy, Dec. 24. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Jones, live at 12311 90 street.

Legion Protest Casualty Errors

Strong protest over "inexcusable errors" in the national defence department resulting in a serious "mixup" concerning casualties of Canadian servicemen overseas, was telegraphed to Ottawa Saturday by the Edmonton branch of the Canadian Legion.

Three cases where next-of-kin have been officially informed of relatives being killed overseas, and later informed the kin were wounded, have come to light in Edmonton recently, Legion officials stated.

In the protest, urging the greatest care in official information concerning casualties, the legion branch stressed the great mental anguish likely to result from "false hopes" of a "mistake" being made.

U.S. Army Officer Administers Oath To Naval Ensign

Is it possible for a U.S. army officer to swear in a civilian who receives an appointment as ensign in the U.S. navy?

It is. This rare incident took place recently when Lt. Milton M. Klein, assistant station personnel officer, administered the oath to Theodore Frederick Brinkmeyer, formerly of the U.S. Engineers, N.W. Division. Mr. Brinkmeyer will leave shortly for Princeton, New Jersey where he will study at the university.

Capt. James Harvey, station personnel officer, and Mrs. Brinkmeyer, wife of the ensign, witnessed the brief, simple ceremony which took place in the unit personnel office.

This is the first time in this area that a U.S. army officer administered the oath to a civilian who was commissioned in the U.S. navy.

On Leave

AB. Charles Malmberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. I. C. Malmberg of 11231 79 street who is spending leave with relatives in England according to word received by his parents. AB. Malmberg has been on active service with the navy for some time.

Peace River Flier With 'Dam Busters'

Ft. Sgt. Fred Sutherland, Peace River airman back home on leave, who flew in the great Royal Air Force raid on the Eder dam in May of last year, described it as "20 times more thrilling than a western picture where someone blows up a dam and floods the valley."

The son of Dr. and Mrs. F. H. Sutherland, Peace River, Ft. Sgt. Sutherland enlisted in the air force in July of 1941. He was married in Edmonton Wednesday to Miss Margaret Baker, also from Peace River. Describing the effect of explosives dropped in the raid on the German dam, the airman said, "The concrete just flew up, and the dam sagged. Water poured out like a waterfall and the bridges and houses just flattened out."

Flying as gunner in the fourth aircraft to advance on the target, Ft. Sgt. Sutherland saw missiles from his plane tear the dam apart. From the Eder dam he went on to the Mohne dam, but it had been blasted by another group of planes before his aircraft arrived. "So we just circled around and then went back," he said.

The Eder dam, described by air force officers as one backing up 134,000,000 tons of water, supplied many great industrial centres in the Ruhr valley with power.

Canadian National Engineer Promoted

Division Engineer for the Canadian National Railways in Edmonton for the past 25 years, R. W. Ross, has been promoted to District Engineer for the province of Manitoba, with headquarters in Winnipeg, and leaves here Sunday night to take over his new position.

Born in Ontario, Mr. Ross first went to work for what was then known as the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, in Manitoba in 1914. For the next ten years he was employed on construction work and helped to build the railway across the prairie provinces.

In 1914 he was appointed assistant engineer at Melville, Sask., and remained in that position for four years. He came to Edmonton as Division Engineer in 1914 and has held that position ever since.

Mr. Ross is a member of the Engineering Institute of Canada, the Professional Engineers of Alberta and the Canadian Club.

He has one son and one daughter both of Edmonton. His wife will remain at the family home at 11723 88 street for the winter and will join him in Winnipeg early in the spring.

AN URGENT REQUEST TO SUPERMAN'S SERVICE FOR SERVICEMEN HAS TAKEN THE MAN OF STEEL TO AUSTRALIA, WHERE CORPORAL NORMAN BRADLEY IS FACED WITH THE PROBLEM OF KEEPING A PROMISE TO HIS FIVE-YEAR-OLD DAUGHTER BACK IN THE STATES...

MAMMOTH MARSUPIAL!! GOSH, BETTY'LL BE DISAPPOINTED. I THOUGHT IT WAS A KANGAROO.

A KANGAROO IS A MARSUPIAL, CORPORAL! BUT MY QUESTION STILL STANDS!

GOSH, SUPERMAN, THEY WON'T LET ME SHIP IT - AND I PROMISED BETTY I'D SEND HER ONE.

IN THAT CASE, I GUESS I'LL HAVE TO OBLIGE.

DON'T FORGET THE ADDRESS!

OVER FIVE THOUSAND MILES OF OCEAN THE SQUIRMING BEAST GIVES SUPERMAN PLENTY OF TROUBLE!

LEAP ONCE MORE, MY FUZZY-FURRED FRIEND, AND I'LL LET YOU DROP!

YET, IN AN INCREDIBLY SHORT TIME, THE MAN OF TOMORROW ARRIVES AT A CERTAIN MIDWESTERN TOWN...

BE POLITE, NOW! THIS IS YOUR NEW HOME.

GREAT HEAVENS! WHAT IS IT??

IT... IT'S MY KANGAROO, I G-GUESS.

PRETTY LIVELY HOUSE PET, I'M AFRAID.

I'M AFRAID SO!!

MOMMY, I DIDN'T THINK IT'D BE SO BIG!

I THOUGHT IT'D BE BETTY LIKE THE TOY ONES IN THE STORES...

LIKE THAT!!

WELL, FAN MY BROW.

WHEN THAT ONE GROWS TOO LARGE, YOU CAN TAKE IT WHERE I'M TAKING ITS MAMA!

THANK YOU, SUPERMAN - THANK YOU!

I UNDERSTAND!

AND A FEW MINUTES LATER...

A FINE SPECIMEN! THANK YOU FOR GIVING IT TO US.
